The Governor, soon after announcing the appointment of the board, issued the following statement:

SLASHES GIRL'S HAIR AND ASPHYXIATES HER

New York, June 26.—The police of the metropolis this afternoon are searching for a new type of criminal as the result of finding the dead body of Helen Schmitzer, twelve-year-old schoolgirl. Several days ago, after appearing as a Japanese dancing girl at a church entertainment, Helen's hair was clipped from her head by a midnight intruder as she lay asleep. This morning she was found asphyxiated. Investigation showed, the police say, that she could not have turned on the gas herself.

TAKE MANY GERMANS CAPTIVE

Pershing's Men Continue to Hammer the Huns North of Chateau Thierry

With the American Army on the Marne, June 26.—The remaining German salient in the Belleau wood, northwest of Chateau Thierry, has been cleared of the Germans through a dashing attack by the American troops. All the enemy machine-gun nests were wiped out and more than 200 prisoners taken. The Germans also suffered heavily in killed and wounded.

By BERT FORD,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

With the American Army at the Marne, June 26, (10 a. m.)—American soldiers on the Marne front, north of Chateau Thierry, angered by German counter-attacks, are clearing out the north and western strips of Belleau Wood.

On Sunday the Germans made a counter-attack with men from the crack 201st division, but it met with no success. The next day another attack was delivered by storm units from the third and fortieth divisions. They managed to gain a foothold on the ground, from which they were ejected last night.

The Americans swept forward, inflicting severe losses upon the Germans and gaining ground. Many prisoners were captured and the number is being increased as stragglers are brought in.

The wood had been blasted by artillery fire and gas shelling and the ground bore evidence of the hellish fury of the fighting.

The Americans are digging in along their new positions.

The scene of the fighting is one of desolation, with trees flattened, vegetation putrid and littered with abandoned equipment.

The Americans have already captured 216 prisoners, much German equipment and a number of machine guns.

The figures in Mr. Ford's cablegram differ from those given out by the French War Office, the latter announcing that 150 prisoners "had been counted."

ITALY WINS VICTORY IN ALPS

More Territory and Prisoners Taken in New Drive in Mount Grippa Sector

Rome, June 26.—Hedged in at the Piave, the last rear-guard of the Austrian army has surrendered as the flight of the invader's main forces continues. Rising waters hinders the Italian pursuit of the last remnant of the desperate enemy to give up the west bank of the rivers. The Italians have penetrated eight to ten miles in the middle sector of the Eastern front. On both the river and mountain fronts nearly 3,000 more prisoners have been taken, making a total of 19,000 since the battle began.

The Italian armies have followed up their great victory over the Austrians along the Piave River by launching a tremendous drive against the enemy in the mountain sectors where the battle front runs westward from the river.

The drive in the mountain region, from the Asiago plateau to Mount Grappa, has scored a success that indicates further Austrian disaster.

The victorious forces under General Diaz, flushed with their overwhelming defeat of the enemy on the southern stretches of the battlefront, are giving the disorganized Austrians no rest.

GAIN ON MT. GRAPPA.

BAKER DECIDES AGAINST CHANGE IN DRAFT AGES

Important development, both here and at Washington today, concerning our armed forces and draft activities, centred on these chief points:

1. Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska announced in the Senate that the United States would have 1,450,000 men in France by September 1 and that there would be 3,340,000 American troops under arms in this country and Europe by that date.

2. There will be no change in the draft age until September at least. This was announced at Washington, following a visit by Secretary of War Baker to the capital.

3. Secretary Baker indicated, in a formal statement today, that "an enlarged program of the United States" was being shaped.

4. Draft-dodgers were pounced upon in Boston and many other Bay State places in a wholesale round-up conducted by the police and military authorities. In the first few hours of the round-up 576 young men were taken into custody in Greater Boston alone as suspected "slackers." Many, who had left registration cards at home, were later released. Arrangements were made to take real "slackers" to Camp Devens.

AGES OF DRAFT REMAIN SAME UNTIL FALL

Washington, June 26.—There will be no change in the draft age before September at the earliest. Official announcement was made to this effect on the floor of the Senate by Senator Chamberlain today. It followed a visit to the Capitol by Secretary of War Baker.

The latter explained to the Senate Military Affairs Committee that the administration believed that it had all the men it required for the present in Class 1. He asked the Senate to permit the War Department fully to consider the subject. On leaving the Capitol the Secretary issued a formal statement, as follows:

"I presented to the committee statements that for the present there are enough men in Class 1 for our prospective needs and when the enlarged program of the United States is ready for presentation to Congress, we will at the same time have complete data on which to base any recommendations for change in the age limits of the draft."

Senator Chamberlain took the floor immediately after the Senate convened and announced the Military Affairs Committee had decided to defer to the wishes of the War Department regarding the draft age.

He said the War Department had asked for more time to investigate the question and probably would present its program to Congress in September. He explained that there were and transport troops which had to be carefully considered in framing the new program.

Draft Roundup Will Send 500 Boston Men to Army

Five hundred Boston men will be sent to Camp Devens and inducted into the army as a result of today's "slacker round up," it was announced by Federal officials. Nearly 600 men were taken to police headquarters of the various districts to explain why they could not show registration cards.

The greatest number of detentions was in the large factory districts, South Boston led the day's record with 180 arrests. Many of the men were later released, on sending home to produce their cards. The Back Bay, West Roxbury and Mattapan stations headed the other end of the record, with no arrests.

LEFT CARDS AT HOME.

At an early hour the police of every district were stationed at the doors of factories and all large places of

New Anniversary Obesrved Today by America

The American Eagle adds one more today to his glorious list of martial anniversaries.

One year ago today the Stars and Stripes landed in France in the form of the first division of the American army sent to take up our burden in the worl war.

That first division has been constantly increased until now it is a vast army. By July it will amount to a round million of men.

A second million is poised in our camps and cantonments, ready to follow the first million overseas.

A third million will stream forward to the training grounds when necessary, to replace those sailing for the front in the coming months.

The army aready in France is proving on every field its noble heritage of American valor. Its impetuous gallantry is recorded at Seicheprey, Cantigny, Chateau Thierry and other battle points where the Stars and Stripes have waved back the maddened Hun.

Evans of Cleveland.

ITALY VICTORIOUS IN NEW OFFENSIVE AGAINST RETREATING FOE

AUSTRIANS ATTACKED ON 25-MILE FRONT ON THE ASIAGO PLATEAU

thrusts along the northwestern front of the Mount Grappa sector.

More than 1,800 Huns, including seven officers, were taken prisoner.

The mountain action extends along a twenty-five-mile front from the Asiago plateau over to Mount Grappa.

In the Asiago sector the Italians made a series of successful raids on the slopes of Monte di Val Bella, bringing back more than 100 prisoners.

The chief action, however, is centred in the Mount Grappa district, where Diaz has heavy concentration of artillery and where his troops are fighting "with great spirit," to quote from the official statement.

TAKE MORE PRISONERS.

The official Italian statement, recording the beginning of this new smash again the northern wing of the Austrian forces, reads as follows:

"On the Asiago plateau, in the course of raids on the slopes of Monte di Val Bella, 108 prisoners were captured. Along the northeastern front of the Grappa sector our troops were in action, combined with the heavy concentration of artillery. Infantry thrusts carried out with great spirit gained us considerable ground from the enemy. We took 1,833 prisoners, seven of them officers."

Latest reports give increasing emphasis to the utter rout of the Austrian southern forces along the Piave.

General Diaz reports that the enemy has been driven out from the right or western bank of the river.

At the points where the Italians were able to cross the flooded stream they gave merciless pursuit to the shattered ranks of the invaders.

The Italian forces in the mountains had been able to hold the Austrians in the first phase of the general offensive in Italy.

With the Austrian drive across the Piave stopped, smashed and hurled back, the triumphant Italians are now attacking the enemy's northern lines as a logical sequence to the fearful punishment given the enemy from the mountains down to the Adriatic.

Successful Raids by British in Sectors of Merville and Sailly

The text of the official statement follows:

"We captured a few prisoners and a machine gun last night in raids and patrol encounters in the neighborhood of Sailly le Sec and west of Merville.

"Hostile artillery was active in the neighborhood of Villee-Sur-Ancre (in the Ancre valley), near Ballleul, south of Lens and in the Hazebrouck sector."

ITALY'S RUBICON. The Serenade of the Arditi

The war song that inspired the Arditi, the leaders of the recent Italian drive, reprinted here for the first time in America from the current issue of 1 420 (Florence), translated from the Italian by A. Palumbo of the New York Evening Journal, rendered into English verse by John A. Brashears of the New York American.

ITALIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS, June 19, 1918.—The Arditi, "The Bold," are a voluntary body of men composed of the most audacious daredevils from all parts of the kingdom, but mostly from Calabria, Sicily and Sardinia. They never remain in the trenches, but are called wherever an attack is imminent. They are first over the top and the first to grapple with the enemy.—NEWS DISPATCH.

I.

"SOFT glows the peaceful moon
O'er Grappa and Sile.
Hushed are our lively chants,
Songs of the harlequin.
Guitar and mandolin
Now inert, lie attuned
Waiting for Victory
When the Piave is crossed,
Italy's Rubicon."
This is their serenade—
High flung the song will burst—
Some will be stilled in death,
Half sung their chorus.
Glorious serenade!
Forward in proud assault!
On to the Rubicon!
Onward Arditi!

II.

"ROUGH hands and ivory white,
Hoary old age and youth.
In every flashing eye
Shines the resolve to win
Honor for Italy.
Arditi, the Bold, we are,
Welded in spirit's forge,
Firm till the end shall come—
Victory or death be ours."
This is the serenade
That shall be flung on high
From the Arditi band,
From Sile to Grappa,
Till the Piave is crossed.
Ye who yet wish to sing
Voice now a ringing praise
To the Arditi's Saint,
Her of the Julian Alps.

LA SERENATA DEGLI "ARDITI"

I.

"Alta la luna argentea, splende dal Grappa al Sile,
ma note a lei non salgono,
di canto tenorile;
ghitarra e mandolino,
e il canto d'Arlecchino,
ammutoliti son.....
Muti così staranno infin che 'l Piave,
per nostre Terre schiave, diventi Rubicon!"
Quest' e la serenta
che va dal core al labro dell' Ardito,
mentre sul Piave guata,
ma che sul labro muor;.....
Muore la Serenata,
ma sulla fredda lama scorre il dito,
la lama ben temprata,
pel fiero assalto,—Vendicator!

II.

"Son rozze dita, e..... eburnee;
di vecchi, e..... adolescenti;
son volti accessi, e..... pallidi,
ma in modo egual frementi:
Gli Arditi del blasone,
gli Arditi del rione,
stretti serrati insiem;.....
sempre così staranno, ne 'l Odio uniti,
i leggendari Arditi,
finche vittoria avrem!"
Quest' e la serenata,
che dell' Ardito va, dal Sile al Grappa,
mentre sul Piave guata,
il suol..... che un da riavra;.....
Muore la serenata,
ma chi la vuol cantar non trema, o scappa!
ed alla donna amata
sull'Alpi Giulie,—la cantera!

VON KUEHLMANN ALMOST BEGS FOR PEACE

Says Allies Show "Bad Faith" When They Spurn the Huns' Lying Diplomacy

By International News Service.

London, June 26.—"Negotiations by the parliaments can hardly bring a war solution; therefore nothing remains but the diplomatic channels," Dr. Richard Von Kuehlmann, the German Foreign Secretary, declared in a second speech before the Reichstag at Berlin, according to a Central News dispatch from Amsterdam today.

"But this route is hopelessly blocked," continued the secretary. "The allies persist in stigmatising the attempt, their antipathy having its origin in bad faith. Could not German victories bring to our enemies the conviction that it is wiser to choose the road through negotiation?"

Count von Hertling, the Chancellor, also made a second speech, declaring that he still had hope that Germany could win a decisive victory on the battlefield. He continued:

"Certain statements made by the Foreign Secretary in his second speech must not be interpreted to mean that Germany's defensive intentions would paralyze other action, nor that confidence in victory need be shaken."

1,450,000 Americans in France by September, Washington Prediction

By International News Service.

Washington, June 26.—The United States will have 1,450,000 men in France by September 1, if the program of the War Department is maintained. A total of 2,340,000 American troops will be under arms in this country and Europe by that time.

This statement was made by Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, member of the Senate Military Affairs Committee, during debate in the Senate this afternoon. He declared that class one of the draft, along with 50,000 Canadians obtained under the recently ratified treaty, would meet all needs.

Gebweiler lies in the eastern foothills of the Vosges and is about fifty miles south by west of the German fortress of Strasburg. It is in that sector that the allied front lies nearest to the Rhine.

Today's War Summary

By FRANK CHARLTON,
International News Service Cable Editor.

The Americans have again taken a prominent part in the fighting on the Marne front, in France, advancing against the Germans in the Belleau Wood sector, where they gained ground, captured many prisoners and inflicted severe losses upon the Germans.

It was strictly an offensive operation and the Americans again proved themselves to be superior fighters over the Boches.

Whether the enterprise was carried out by marines or by infantrymen was not made plain in the early dispatches, but it is possible that the assault was made by a mixed force of both.

The fighting was described as very desperate and as taking place amidst a scene of appalling battle desolation.

Minor operations occurred on other parts of the front.

Fighting on the Piave front in Italy appears to have died down, which is natural in view of conditions prevailing there. The Italians have made a big advance and their crossing of the Piave River has been hampered by the flood of that stream.

It is therefore necessary for the Italians to move more slowly, although the Austro-Hungarian retreat is apparently in progress yet.

In the meantime the Italians have opened a strong counter offensive on the eastern fringe of the Asiago plateau and in the region of Monte Grappa, where the Austrians were driven back from high ground of strategic value.

HOMER KISSED MRS. WILBUR WHILE DANCING, SAYS FORMER MAID

DENTIST'S CREDIT WAS GOOD WITHOUT SECURITY, SAYS LOS ANGELES BANKER

A deposition from Leoni Foliere, formerly Mrs. Wilbur's maid, read today at the trial of Dr. Joseph Homer on the charge of stealing Mrs. Wilbur's jewels, said that Dr. Homer had kissed Mrs. Wilbur while they were dancing, that he had held Mrs. Wilbur on his lap, and that he had been in her room at night when Mrs. Wilbur was in bed.

The deposition asserted that the doctor, while living in the same hotel with Mrs. Wilbur, spent much of his time in her room, during the evening, and that they frequently exchanged terms of endearment. Mrs. Wilbur was away all the night of January 19, 1917, the deposition said.

Mrs. Wilbur asked the maid, according to the latter's deposition, to call Dr. Homer every morning to make arrangements for the day. At the Alpine Hotel, on Mount Lowe, according to the deposition, Mrs. Wilbur drank a cocktail and danced with Dr. Homer, who kissed her while they were dancing. The maid said in her deposition that she occupied the room across that hall from Mrs. Wilbur that night.

TELLS OF HOMER'S DEPOSITS.

S. F. Zambro, vice-president of the Security National Bank of Los Angeles, deposed that Dr. Homer deposited $10,000 in that institution on December 26, 1913, and made substantial deposits afterward; and that the bank lent him $3,500 on his unsecured notes.

Dr. Homer, when recalled by his attorney, said that he deposited the check for $2,750 from Mrs. Wilbur in Zambro's bank on November 8, 1916. Questioned by Assistant District Attorney Gallagher, he denied filing a petition in bankruptcy or that a petition had been filed in his behalf.

When shown the maid's deposition Dr. Homer denied making any changes in it and said that the alterations were not in his writing. He said that the maid's memory was at fault in some statements and that she had probably corrected them later. He said that he had brought the depositions himself from California.

In a letter from Mrs. Wilbur which was shown, the sentence "I don't trust you" had been altered to read "I don't distrust you." Dr. Homer denied that he had made the change. He said that he had not authorized Dr. Good to write Mrs. Wilbur, after his arrest, that J. C. Bull would like to visit her.

Judge J. A. Brackett, who was Mrs. Wilbur's lawyer for several years, said he was present at the Profile House when Dr. Homer and Mrs. Wilbu met there. He said Dr. Homer refused to talk before him, but would like to talk with Mrs. Wilbur aside.

He said Mrs. Wilbur did not wink to the doctor and say, "You know I will tell my lawyer everything you say." He said he took a book which Dr. Homer offered Mrs. Wilbur as a present. He did not know until long afterward that Mrs. Wilbur and Homer had talked the same day.

Q.—Did she ever communicate with you about being kept in the doctor's room against her will, being beaten and having her eyes blackened? A.—She did not.

He said Mrs. Wilbur did not tell him until after Dr. Homer called his attention to the fact that in the week of May 7 she motored with the doctor to Plymouth and the North Shore and went to the theatre with him.

DIDN'T REGRET THE CHARGE.

Assistant District Attorney Gallagher asked: "Did Dr. Homer say at the Profile House that he was not a criminal and would not make restitution?" A.—No.

Q.—Did Mrs. Wilbur say she regretted making the charge? A.—No.

Judge Brackett said he did not tell Dr. Homer that if he had handled the case the doctor would not have been arrested.

Clerk Owen of the Copley-Plaza testified that in the week Mrs. Wilbur was there she changed her room three times. Manager Hight of the Touraine testified that room No. 310 has a wide transom and a telephone.

HANDWRITING EXPERT CALLED.

William A. Hington, handwriting expert, called in rebuttal, testified that in his opinion letters written by the defendant to Mrs. Wilbur, which he had used as a standard in making comparisons, were written by the same person who wrote the address on an envelope which Dr. Homer had previously testified he did not write.

The envelope was addressed to "Mrs. Madge Wilbur, Hotel Somerset, Boston."

The judge left the bench and the jury their seats while Mr. Hingston gave a demonstration of the reasons for his opinion.

John H. Flanagan, testifying for the defence, said he was cashier at the Hotel Westminster on June 22, 1917, and that the bill for the occupants of Room 219, "Mr. and Mrs. J. Jule," was paid in two installments and that Mrs. Wilbur's maid paid the second installment.

STOCK MARKET GAINS QUICKLY SWEPT AWAY

The tone of the stock market today was better on initial trading, but a reactionary tendency was soon evident. Reading, General Motors and Studebaker recorded good gains and Sumatra Tobacco met with a substantial loss. Rails and coppers were quiet.

BUSINESS MEN LEAD STAMP DRIVE

Boston's business district continues far in the lead in the sale of War Savings and Thrift Stamps and the figures published by the State director's office show that the amount credited to it is slightly over half of the total sales for the whole city and just under half of the total for Suffolk County.

In the city, as a whole, the campaign for pledges of a $1,000 limit has started at a very feeble pace. The report made at the meeting of the chairmen for twelve districts showed that in only nine of them had any sales been made or pledges secured of the $1,000 packages.

The women of Dukes County showed the way to their sisters in the larger counties in Massachusetts by reporting that they had put the little county of Martha's Vineyard squarely over the top.

Worcester County marked its total of pledges up to 56,529, representing $1,141,554. Franklin and Norfolk counties were represented in the reports of pledges of 50 per cent. of their quotas.

The reports, incomplete to some degree, from the State-at-large to State headquarters pointed to a total of 624,000 pledges secured out of the million. There are but three days to go on the campaign and, on the other hand, many chairmen are holding back their reports until they are able to give the final total.

Two towns, Milton and Canton, according to the reports, have secured through the sale of stamps up to June 7 and the pledges signed since then well over the amount of $20 per capita assigned to them in the $78,000,000 asked of the State.

Canton reported sales and pledges amounting to 23,079 stamps, or $117,600, for a population of 5,200.

Fourteen more towns went over the top, making a total of sixty-five in all. The new ones include Marblehead, Spencer, Burlington, Edgartown, Gill, North Andover, Shrewsbury, Townsend, Weston and Rockland.

Somerville, after two days of an intensive drive, reported 12,106 pledges out of a quota of 24,000.

The report for Lawrence was 15,000 pledges out of 24,000 on the third day of the drive. Lowell reports 27 per cent. of pledges with the factories yet to be canvassed. Lexington reports 1,100 pledges out of a quota of 1,500 with thirty members in the $1,000 Limit Club.

ASK PLEDGES AS THEY SELL PAPERS

Newsboys Aiding War Savings Stamps Drive Directed by Mrs. Saltonstall

By MARIE DUNBAR.

"Extra, Extra, E-x-tra. Buy a War Saving Stamp. Be with Uncle Sam. Sign here." This is the universal cry of the 4,500 Boston newsboys who, under the direction of Mrs. Philip L. Saltonstall, head of the Women's War Saving Stamp Committee of Boston, are securing pledges for the War Saving Stamps.

Have you answered the call of your newsboy? Have you let that shrill, piping voice or that lusty, deep voice cry in vain? He is calling for Uncle Sam. Are you letting Uncle Sam send forth a futile cry?

"Have you signed your pledge for War Savings Stamps? Sign here." This is the frank reminder on the tag worn by every Boston newsboy who is obtaining pledges for War Saving Stamps. The newsboys hope to go over the top and turn in at least 10,000 pledges to Mrs. Saltonstall Friday evening when the big June drive closes.

RECRUIT THEMSELVES.

The newsboys have not waited for recruits. They have recruited themselves first—Happy Rubinovitz, King of the Newsboys, stated that a great many of the newsboys are taking out pledges themselves. Four hundred of the 700 members of the Newsboys' Protective Union have already pledged themselves to this patriotic cause.

And have you got into the game, Mr. and Mrs. and Miss Grown Up?

"The children are working so hard," said Mrs. Saltonstall, when speaking of the campaign to secure pledges to the Thrift Stamps. "If the grown-ups would only take the matter as seriously as the children then it seems as if it would take but a few minutes and we would be over the top."

"It's not so much the little stamp itself that is speaking these days," continued Mrs. Saltonstall, "but it is the principle of thrift, self-denial and sacrifice behind the stamps. It's a permanent institution and I feel that the stamps will continue to be long after the war is over. The people are just being educated up to the idea. The children have taken it up. The parents will soon become enthusiastic."

WORKER CALLS UP.

The telephone in Mrs. Saltonstall's headquarters rang. One of the workers was calling.

"It is the same cry from all over," stated Mrs. Saltonstall to the person on the other end of the line.

"You see," she explained as she hung up the receiver, "we are having quite a time explaining that we want the pledges. If we were asking for money it would be easier for them to understand, but it is pledges for Uncle Sam that we want. Pledges that the people of this country are behind him and they are pledging their loyalty and service.

"I can't emphasize too strongly that everyone should pledge right away. Don't wait to be solicited. The newsboys all have their badges. They are all solicitors for Uncle Sam and the War Saving Committee. Take just a few minutes longer and sign up for some stamps. Go away with the feeling that you have let Uncle Sam know that you are behind him."

DORCHESTER WORKERS.

The Dorchester workers of Ward 11 who are soliciting pledges for War Saving Stamps are working under Mrs. William Siewerts, No. 19 Willis street, Dorchester, Miss Emily McLaughlin, Miss E. G. Griffin, Miss Margaret Sullivan, Mrs. John C. Colt and Mrs. Charles Fredericks. Mrs. Siewerts is the major of the workers and the remaining women are captains of the teams which are securing pledges. Miss Emily McLaughlin secured pledges amounting to $4,000 the first day that she worked. Mrs. Siewerts has reported that she hopes and believes that she will have her full quota by the end of the week.

Mrs. Benjamin Weeks, head of the Hyde Park committee, has reported that Hyde Park is coming to the front splendidly for the War Saving Stamp cause.

A big War Stamp rally will be held this evening at the Municipal Building, South Boston, at 8 o'clock. The speakers will be Sergeant Byrne, State chairman Herrick of the War Saving Stamp committee, ex-Mayor John Fitzgerald, Mrs. Charles Hess, in charge of the South Boston district, will preside at the rally. Mrs. Philip Saltonstall will make a few remarks concerning the War Stamp drive.

Miss Gilbert, who is a native of Fredericton, N. B., has asked the military authorities that she be sent overseas immediately.

Eight-Year-Old Girl Leads in War Stamp Letter Contest

Prizes are announced today for the opening week of the Boston AMERICAN'S War Savings Stamp Letter Contest for school children of Boston and New England.

A wounded soldier's little eight-year-old daughter, living in the Plymouth County village of Burrage—Lillian MacDonald by name—wins the first prize of $5.

On account of the tremendous interest in this patriotic contest and the great number of letters received from all over New England, the Boston AMERICAN has decided to increase the number of weekly prizes from three to thirty-seven. The prizes for the second week in the contest will be one prize of $5, one prize of $2 and thirty-five prizes of $1 each.

The three prize winners of the opening week, as selected with much care from the hundreds of letters sent in, are:

First prize, $5—Lillian MacDonald, eight years old, Burrage, Mass.

Second prize, $2—Harold Downs, eleven years old, No. 16 Hubbard avenue, Cambridge, Mass., Shepard School.

Third prize, $1—Mabel E. Hayes, eleven years old, Milton, N. H., grammar school.

Eight-year-old Lillian MacDonald, whose soldier-daddy lies wounded in an English hospital, writes a wonderfully interesting and appealing letter, with her childish account of picking bugs off the potato plants in her uncle's garden and bringing in the wood.

Harold Downs, the second prize winner, gives a list of seven different kinds of work he has done to earn money for "War Savies." Harold is a hustler.

Mabel E. Hayes, who receives the dollar prize, is one of the fifteen children in the fifth and sixth grades of the Milton, N. H., grammar school, whose letters were forwarded in one batch by Miss Bessie A. Gushee, the teacher of those two grades. Mabel makes the patriotic point in her letter that she "had a good time" earning War Stamp money. Notice, too, the different things that Mabel did and plans to do, from girl's work, like caring for a baby, to boy's work like haying.

Here are the winning letters:

FIRST PRIZE—FIVE DOLLARS.

"Burrage, Mass., Box 23.

"How I earn money to buy War Savings Stamps.

"I started saving my money for stamps when I went to school and came to live with grandma for my health, but I buy stamps just the same. I have one $5 stamp and 13 stamps in another book. My uncle planted a war garden and I am keeping the bugs off his potatoes and he brings me a stamp every Sunday. My papa is wounded and is in the Bronkesmere hospital in England and he writes he is glad I am saving stamps. I bring in wood and go to the postoffice and buy stamps with the money. Lillian McDonald,

8 years old, grade II.

(Endorsed by Florence Blume, teacher).

SECOND PRIZE—TWO DOLLARS.

"June 21, 1918.

"I am writing to tell you how I earned my War Savings Stamp money. All Winter I pulled coal on my sled for the neighbors, shoveled snow, sifted ashes, run errands, helped a lady plant her war garden, carried laundry and put up my father's lunches. I am eleven years old and am in the fifth grade in the Shepard School. I have earned eight dollars.

"HAROLD DOWNS.

"No. 16 Hubbard avenue, Cambridge, Mass."

(Endorsed by M. F. Calnane, Shepard School.)

THIRD PRIZE—ONE DOLLAR.

"Milton, N. H., June 19.

"I had a good time earning my Thrift Stamps this Winter. I ran all errands for my mother and for the neighbors. I carried milk and I took care of a baby. I helped weed my father's garden. I helped plant this Spring.

"I am going to hay and help my father on the farm and get some more money for Thrift Stamps. I am going to spend only what is necessary this Summer.

"MABEL E. HAYES, 11 years.

"Milton, N. H., Grammar School."

(Endorsed by Miss Bessie A. Gushee, teacher.)

Remember, children—read the contest rules carefully. They are not hard. Many a good letter lost its prize chances the first week by running over the limit of one hundred words, by not being endorsed by the writer's teacher or clergyman or by some other violation of the rules.

Children who have written one are invited to try again, except those who have won prizes.

The addition of thirty-four more one-dollar prizes gives everyone much greater chance to get on the prize list.

Here are some of the letters received this week:

GRACE E. GAINLEY, Eleven Years—I am trying very hard to help win the war. I have already saved two War Savings Stamps and am going onto my third one. This is the way I earn them: I do all my mother's errands, help with the housework and have given up the movies, also the extra money I get for candy, and sometimes I do a few errands for the neighbors. I am not going to get discouraged, but keep right ahead, for I dearly love to help Uncle Sam win the war.

New Lewis School, Grade 5, Roxbury.

WILLIAM H. FOLEY, 11 Years—I earn my money for Thrift Stamps doing Mother's errands, also for bringing up the wood, and sometimes I take care of my brother and sisters while my mother goes to the store. I have filled three stamp books and have started on the fourth. Every stamp I buy helps lick the Kaiser, and that will be great. Then my uncle, who is somewhere in France, can come home.

Yours for War Stamps.

17 Richmond street, Weymouth.

JULIUS WILZEROSKI, twelve years—I have earned my money for stamps by working in the garden, hauling coal, working in the cemeteries, selling junk and running errands. I am going to earn more money by working in a factory.

No 246 Kennebec street, Mattapan, Trescott School.

WILLIAM H. FROST, eleven years—Already I have purchased two War Savings Stamps and five Thrift Stamps. I earned money to buy them in several ways. My father is janitor of the Beaver School and so he hired me to assist him at twenty-five cents per week. I did errands for neighbors and the pennies they paid me I saved. One neighbor hired me to pick up shingles, for which he paid me twenty-five cents. My mother hired me to wash windows, and my father paid me for helping him plant. I shall work my garden during the Summer vacation to buy my next Stamp.

No. 73 Summer street, East Bridgewater, Beaver School, grade 8.

FLORENCE A. NOTTAGE, eleven years—The way I earn my War Savings Stamp money is that I help with the housework and care for baby and do the errands after school. I also walk to the city and back. I use the carfare to buy Thrift Stamps. As I am the eldest of five I only received twenty-five cents a week from my mother. I have started each of my younger brothers to save by giving each one a stamp to begin with. If I should be one of the prize winners I would use the money to buy more Thrift Stamps.

No. 463 Chalkstone avenue, Providence, R. I., St. Patrick's School.

MARGARET E. WAESPE, seven years—I am only seven years old but I can do my bit buying Thrift Stamps. I run errands for my neighbors and the pennies I get I save for Thrift Stamps. Each Saturday I dust for my mother and earn a Thrift Stamp. At school we get a star on the board for every perfect paper in quick work, and my father gives me a Thrift Stamp for every star I receive. I have now four War Saving Stamps and am working hard for more.

No. 21 Bayside avenue, Newport, R. I., Coggeshall School, grade 4.

ROWENA FRENCH, eight years—I earn money by washing the dishes and by feeding the goats. I sweep the floors and pick dandelions.

75 Wildwood Av., Worcester. Gates Lane School.

$25,000 DRUGS SEIZED IN RAID UPON HOUSE

Morphine and opium to the value of $25,000 was seized as a result of a raid on a Massachusetts avenue lodging house through which the federal authorities believe, they have broken up a big wholesale center of the drug trade.

At least a part of the drugs, they believe, were smuggled into this country from Canada. They believe that Alfred Carnicelli, now held here in $20,000 bail, was the head of a wholesale traffic in "dope" whereby many users in this locality were supplied.

Carnicelli, who was arrested before the drugs were seized, is charged with being a fugitive from justice from Vermont, where, the Federal authorities say, he is wanted for having in his possession 34 packages of smoking opium and two pounds of morphine.

The drugs seized in the raid on the Massachusetts avenue place were found in a large trunk. It is alleged that they belong to Theodore Deutchman, who was arrested in St. Albans, Vt., last Friday, by Customs Inspectors Finnigan and Barry.

Carnicelli, who lives in Woodland street, Arlington, was arraigned today before Commissioner Hayes in the Federal building. He pleaded not guilty. His mother was willing to furnish $10,000 bail, but Assistant District Attorney Shea refused. He wanted $10,000 on the charge pending against Carnicelli in Vermont, as well as $10,000 on the charge made against him as a result of the raid here, of having in his possession smuggled narcotics. The heavy bail was necessary, Mr. Shea said, because Carnicelli is regarded as the head of a widespread traffic in drugs.

Carnicelli is waiting disposition of his case at the East Cambridge jail. He was arrested at Massachusetts and Huntington avenue.

HUNDREDS OF WORKMEN TAKEN IN DRAFT 'DODGER' ROUNDUP

Police Stations Thronged by Men Who Couldn't Show War Cards; Many Made Good Later.

business where many young men were employed, and all those entering were required to produce their cards. In many cases the youths explained they had cards at home. They were given an opportunity to produce the cards.

All suspects, or those whom the police believe to be draft evaders, are being sent to the United States marshal's office in the Federal Building for investigation.

The total in Boston stations early this afternoon was 582, as follows:

Hanover street, 38; Court square, 48; Joy street, 5; Lagrange street, 47; East Dedham street, 46; South Boston, 180; East Boston, 56; Dudley street, 22; Roxbury Crossing, 48; Field's Corner, 30; City Point, 17; Jamaica Plain, 11; Brighton, 1; Charlestown, 10; Back Bay, West Roxbury and Mattapan, none; Hyde Park, 28.

Details of police from the quieter districts are being sent to the more troublesome districts. Fifteen from Brighton, Charlestown and Back Bay went to South Boston, and twelve from West Roxbury to Hyde Park. All men taken are held until they can send to their homes, and those who are able to produce cards within a reasonable time will be released.

Cambridge is having a lively time, owing partly to the large number of factories, and partly to conflicting orders received by the police in East Cambridge as to what kind of cards must be shown. This district, covered by Station 3, has about 21 factories, with a large percentage of foreign workers, including a number of Austrians.

CHANGE OF ORDERS.

The first orders were that not only the blue card of registration must be shown, but also the white card indicating the classification of the registrant.

About 9:30 the station was packed with some 200 to 250 men, many of them in paper caps and overalls of mechanics and laborers, and about half had been listed, when a telephone message from police headquarters instructed that the blue card was sufficient.

To Captain James M. Keaney this information came as a great relief, and permission was immediately given to all those holding blue cards to go back to work.

Not long after, came notification from the Department of Justice that both cards were required. For a time the utmost confusion prevailed, when it was learned that the rounding up would have to be done all over again. Word was received that the Department of Justice would send over a group of men to help.

Station 3 in Cambridge now has 15 men locked up several of whom are Austrians. Some of these men say they have registration cards, but give their residences as Rhode Island, Pennsylvania and other states. They will be held until their cases are thoroughly investigated.

Station 2, in Central square, Cambridge, covers sixty-seven factories. Men taken from their work swarmed over the station from top to cellar. They came in every kind of conveyance from automobile to moving van, one lot being brought in by the police on a trolley car. Most of them were found to be duly registered, and merely careless in the matter of carrying their cards; but there were among the throng a number of slackers, who are under arrest. Their cases will be investigated later by the Department of Justice.

Station 4, in North Cambridge, covers only two or three factories. Only three men were taken and later released. Station 1, in Brattle square, has had only six men brought in.

Police from Station 9, Dudley street, Boston, gathered in twenty-five more men in the draft age who were unable to show registration cards. All claim to have registered.

Officers from Station 14, Brighton, arrested one man who has not registered. He will be turned over to the United States Marshal.

Seventy-five young men were rounded up in Lynn by police who were stationed at all the factories at 6.30 a. m. to intercept those entering. Of this number about 25 were English speaking men.

When asked by the police to show their cards they gave various excuses, although all claimed to have registered. They are held at Lynn police headquarters awaiting identification and action by the three exemption boards of the district.

BUSY IN LAWRENCE.

In Lawrence nearly 1,000 were taken from the American Woolen Company, the Wood, Ayer, Plymouth, Washington and Arlington mills, and a few from the Pacific mills. Many of the workers are Lithuanians and Italians. They came from all parts of the city and in any kind of conveyance—farm wagons, automobiles, patrol wagons and delivery teams. Vehicles of all kinds were in constant demand at the various mill gates early in the day.

The rule was that both cards be shown, but the authorities there generally accepted the white card of classification as satisfactory, inasmuch as the holder could not secure it without having first been registered.

Salem yielded up eighteen men without registration cards.

Brockton police today took the names of about 150 men whose ages they intend to investigate. They stopped the men on their way to work and inquired for registration cards. The men almost uniformly replied that they were thirty-two or thirty-three years old. One, who admitted that he was twenty-five years old, said that he had not registered and would not do so. He also declared that he would not fight the Kaiser. He and three other men were arrested.

Eight men were arrested by the Quincy police as they were entering the factory of the Tubular Rivet Company. The men had no registration cards and gave their names as Ernest Brown, Martin McNichols, Hjalmar B. Johnson, Zackey Alexandroff, Sam Bellevia, St. Clair Kirton, McDonald Folkes and Joe Moses, all of Quincy.

WILL BE FORCED TO FIGHT.

Federal building officials were kept busy examining the men taken there for not being able to produce cards at their local police stations. Thirty-five men from Station 2 could neither produce registration cards nor cards showing they had returned their questionnaires. A number of these were later released.

At the Department of Justice 150 men were examined in the forenoon. Assistant District Attorney Judd Dewey answered many telephone queries from the police of different districts for instructions. He gave orders that all who could show they had been registered be released.

All those who the Federal authorities believe have wilfully failed to register or to return their questionnaires will be inducted into the army, it was announced.

Hundreds of youths flooded the offices of the local boards demanding duplicate registration cards for ones they had lost.

In some instances cards have been lost for six months and no application made for a new one. At Board No. 4, City Hall, Chairman Peter Porter and his force were swamped with requests for new cards.

Throng of Relatives and Friends Cheers Men as Their Train Leaves

Mothers, sisters, daughters and sweethearts were at the South Station today to bid farewell to the 2,000 men who left for Camp Dix as Boston's latest draft quota.

Long before the train which was to bear them to their training camp arrived the East Boston division of 102 men, the largest quota in the State, marched up Summer street headed by a band and entered the station. This division was in charge of George H. Shields and William C. McGuire.

Red Cross women were on hand with cigarettes and chewing gum and candy. They had established booths all along the track and as the drafted men filed down to take their places in the cars they received these gifts.

Everybody seemed to have a smile. One mother from Roxbury as she bade her son good-by declared, "I'm thinking you'll be home to Thanksgiving dinner, Tom."

At exactly 9:20 the train of fourteen cars pulled out, leaving a cheering throng behind.

109 Men Forced to March With Baggage to Train for Lack of Car Service

Complaints of improper service on the part of the Boston Elevated were made to the AMERICAN today by officials of Division 7 Exemption Board, No. 177 Huntington avenue.

One hundred and nine draftees, bound for Camp Dix, and members of the provost guard had to march to the South Station this morning, laden with grips, and six lost the train, because the Elevated did not supply cars for the men as previously arranged, according to W. J. Conlon, a member of the board.

"We had arranged with the transportation department of the Elevated for two large cars," said Mr. Conlon, "as there would be, including the draftees, members of the provost guard and others accompanying them, about 120 passengers. This was fully explained and understood. The train was to leave at 9:30.

"Instead of the two large cars arranged for, the company sent only one small car. The result was that those poor fellows had to march to the station in the hot sun, weighted with their grips; got there just as the train was pulling out, and six lost the train.

"This has happened before. In fact, we have had considerable trouble with the Elevated service. About a fortnight ago we asked for two large cars to send 100 men, also with their grips, to Camp Devens. That time the company sent only one small car, and the men had to ride to the North Station packed into the car and hanging on the running boards."

J. Harvey White, publicity agent of the Elevated, made this statement:

"I have investigated the case in question, and find that only one car was ordered. It was sent there at the time specified. When it arrived, it was found not to be sufficient. Our man offered to give the Exemption Board men a trailer, to accommodate the rest, but for some reason they didn't want this. Whatever misunderstanding there has been is evidently relative to the ordering of cars."

Inspiring Addresses Before Departure of East Boston Draftees

Twenty-eight draftees of Division 1 of East Boston and 102 draftees of Division 2 of East Boston assembled in the East Boston Court House to listen to addresses by city officials and members of the exemption boards before their departure for Camp Dix.

The East Boston Band played patriotic airs and after the 130 draftees had listened to the words of good cheer from many prominent citizens the young men, headed by the band and William C. Maguire, chairman of Exemption Board No. 2, marched to the South Station.

Brookline's Quota of 29 Men Escorted to Station by a Band

Twenty-nine men, Brookline's quota for the latest draft, left for Camp Dix. The men gathered at the draft board headquarters in the Pierce School and, headed by a band, marched to the depot. Here they were met by the selectmen and town officials. All left on the 8.56 train for Riverside, where they were to board a train for Camp Dix. A crowd of relatives and friends was on hand.

Marlboro, June 26.—District 14's quota of thirty-five men left here for Camp Dix today with Mayor McCarthy, members of the Exemption Board and a large crowd giving them a sendoff. Those in the quota are:

Albert J. Bertrand, Alfred J. Sunderland, Joseph Short, Michael Comer, Oscar Freeman, Frederick E. Madden, Frederick H. Daley, Charles B. Mullen, Leon Graves, Edwin N. Josephson, John L. Bent, Vincent Ryan, Robert J. Clary, Peter B. Vassell, James V. Sullivan, Arthur H. Robbins, Dennis J. Curran, Jr., William J. O'Connell, Harry F. Dumas, James M. Emily, Charles Walcott, John J. "I HAVE been using Doctor Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin for more than seven years. I believe it saved my little granddaughter's life, as she had such terrible spasms, caused by the condition of her stomach, until we gave her Syrup Pepsin. Our family thinks there is no remedy like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin for the stomach and bowels."

Cut the Cost of Mileage

When you see a car puffing and panting up steep hills and over rough roads when it really ought to move along as easily and as steadily as a brook glides in its course—blame it on inferior gasoline.

The use of poor gasoline, whether for limousine, touring car, roadster or motor truck, is always extravagant waste.

In these days there is no excuse for such waste. Buy high mileage and full power. Buy SO-CO-NY Motor Gasoline.

SO-CO-NY is the surest economy. It means more miles per gallon. It is clean—powerful—quick-starting—reliable.

Look for the Red, White and Blue SO-CO-NY Sign. SO-CO-NY means saving wisely. It cuts the cost of mileage.

French Courage Sublime, Says Miss Sturgis, Red Cross Worker

The vivid account given by Miss Mabel Sturgis of Beacon street and Manchester-by-the-Sea to Marie Dunbar of the Boston AMERICAN staff of relief work among French refugees continues today in its third instalment. Miss Sturgis has recently returned from France, where she spent one and one-half years working for the Refugee Department of the Red Cross Civil Affairs Bureau. In the opening instalment she told how refugees from the German advance or sent home from Germany arrive at Evian, France, and receive immediate care.

By MARIE DUNBAR.

Then do you think that these people who have lost their homes are all disheartened, that they look on the world with dull eyes, that they see nothing but the chaos and destruction, that they wonder what they are to live for! Again you have received a wrong impression if you answer in the affirmative.

"The French people are wonderful," said Miss Sturgis. "Their courage is sublime. Many of these refugees have lost their homes twice over during the war. Driven from their homes early in the war they established themselves again, only to be forced to flee or taken civil prisoners when life looks brighter for them.

MIRRORS ESCAPE IN CRASH.

"Still I saw very few who were not just as anxious to establish a little home again. And the French always have a pretty thing to say and know how to say it. Their humor is very bright and always at their ready demand.

"Miss Curtis and I went to see what we could do for people whose homes had been demolished by the munitions plant explosion. The roof of one woman's house was blown off and practically everything wrecked by the explosion. She was not in tears, however. She led us through her house. She showed us how two large mirrors had fallen and slid several feet from their former position, due to the shock of the explosion. They were not even cracked.

"She then led us to the kitchen. Here she showed us a ham which had slid under the kitchen stove. It had been in her pantry previous to the explosion. She then took us to her garden. She had placed little sticks wherever the munition had landed.

"'How do you know that the munition is there,' we asked her.

"'Why you see,' she answered, I know every foot of my garden so well that nothing but munition could make those holes.

HEN UNDISTURBED.

"She then took us to her hen house. She showed us one of her pet hens. The hen was quietly setting on the eggs and had not even moved when disturbed by the explosion.

I asked Miss Sturgis about the air raids in Paris. I was soon convinced that they have become more of a monotonous proceeding for Paris rather than a romantic excitement.

"They have wonderful cellars in Paris, and, in fact, throughout France," explained Miss Sturgis, "and they are used a great deal. If there are several stories or even two stories over the cellar, you feel perfectly safe. The workers in France do not go to the cellars so much from personal fear as they feel that every precaution should be taken to preserve the man power of France."

Miss Sturgis told me this little story.

Following an air raid the authorities were walking along the streets to aid the people and to determine exactly what the damage had been. Some people had been made captives in a cellar by the falling of the walls of the building they were in.

"Say, help us out," they called up to the authorities.

"Are you all right?" was the query of the authorities.

"O, yes, we're fine, but we want to get out," answered captives.

"You can wait until this afternoon if you are all right,' stated the men, and passed on to help those in need of immediate aid.

"BILL" KELIHER TO BE A REAL "COMEBACK"

William J. Kelliher is going to stage a "comeback."

"Big BILL" the man who has spent eight of his prime years in prison for aiding George Coleman take hundreds of thousands of dollars from the National City Bank in Cambridge, is ready to face the world and make good.

Kelliher is now at the Federal prison in Fort Leavenworth, Kansas awaiting his release. The Federal Parole Board has passed on his application for parole. All that remains to make him again a free man is the official signature of Attorney-General Gregory to the release papers.

As soon as the Boston Federal District Attorney furnishes his part of the red tape Kelliher will hasten to Boston to rejoin his wife and son in their Needham home.

Kelliher longs to get back to show people he is not the man his conviction painted him. He has always maintained he was the tool of others who used him to do the steering which resulted in Coleman's robbing the bank while serving as its cashier.

Kelliher wired the AMERICAN today his plans for the future. He says he is eager to get back and make up for the lost years. "I want to establish myself as a man among men," he says.

This is his telegram to the editor of the AMERICAN:

Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

My plans for the future are based on an indomitable desire to establish myself as a man among men. I want to replace the lost years. I hope to do so by my indefatigable and increased efforts to make an honest living for myself and family.

I am going to demonstrate to Mr. Asa P. French and others that I am not the man they painted me at my trial. In this way I hope to show my appreciation to those practical friends who have stood by me in my trouble and to show them the gratitude of a grateful heart.

WILLIAM J. KELLIHER.

COMMISSION MILFORD PASTOR AS CHAPLAIN

PAWNBROKER MUST PAY INCOME TAX ON LOANS

Pawnbrokers must pay to the Commonwealth under the income tax law 6 per cent on interest received by them on loans, says the full bench of the Supreme Court in dismissing the petition of Meyer Goldman against William D. T. Trefry, tax commissioner. The tax commissioner learned that Goldman on one loan had received interest amounting to $871, and assessed a tax of 6 per cent. on the same as provided by the income tax law. Goldman sought to have the court order the amount of the tax refunded to him.

MICHIGAN RAILWAY RATES PLEA APPROVED

Washington, June 26.—The application of the Michigan Railway Company for increased passenger fares, excess baggage, stateroom and berth charges between points on its lines and Chicago were today approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The application of the company for permission to abolish its rules and regulations governing commutation tickets was denied on the ground that sufficient cause has not been shown.

PRESIDENT WILSON SAYS: I earnestly appeal to every man, woman and child to pledge themselves on or before the 28th of June to save constantly and buy regularly Government Securities. The person who buys War Savings Stamps regularly transfers the power of his money to the government. May there be none unenlisted.

Line Up and Sign Up!

IN THAT great American army of 1,000,000 already fighting in France, all classes of American manhood are represented. The millionaire's son fights beside the son of the working man; Greek-American, Italian-American, Polish-American, Southerner, Northerner, Westerner and Easterner fight together for our country. Class, creed, race; all blended into Americanism!

And in that great army that stays at home—that army of fighters that represents the second line of defense, all must fight together, too! It makes no difference whether you're rich or poor, whether you are American by birth or American by adoption, whether you are young or old, your place awaits you in the army of savers!

Every child should agree to buy at least one Thrift Stamp a week.
Every adult should agree to buy at least one War Savings Stamp a month.
Every adult who possibly can should buy one War Savings Stamp a wek.
Every person who can spare $834 should join the Limit Club and buy a block of certificates representing $1000 at maturity.
But all should join! Obey the President! Pledge today!

What is a War Savings Stamp? How much does it cost?

A War Savings Stamp is a loan to your country. It costs $4.17 in June, $4.18 in July. Each month it costs (and is worth to you) 1c more. A War Savings Stamp is always worth at least what you paid for it: you can cash it in at any time for what you paid for it, plus interest, if you need the money. 40,000 Massachusetts women are taking pledges to buy War Savings Stamps. The postmen are helping. Sign a pledge today and buy your first stamp. War Savings Stamps may be purchased at any bank or postoffice, from any letter-carrier and from most stores.

FRANCES WHITE APPEARS IN NEW ROLE

Calls on Dramatic Editor of American and Tells Him She Is a Press Agent

You just can't keep that little White girl out of the papers. Here the AMERICAN ran an interview with her a few days ago because she got a finger bunged up in a taxicab.

Yesterday afternoon she burst into the dramatic editor's office, representing herself to be the press agent of Rock and White.

It is the custom of theatrical press agents to visit the newspaper theatrical critics every Tuesday and submit photographs and veracious accounts of their stars.

Frances White blew in attired in a diaphanous green dress with a black halo hat, and a black feather sticking out in front like the prow of a schooner.

She carried a portfolio under her arm and announced that she represented Rock and White. Also that she was on her way to the ball game and was in a hurry.

This is a regular press agent's preamble.

Then she produced a bundle of photographs. If she represented Rock and White you would never know it from the photographs. They were all White. There wasn't a Rock nearer than the cobblestones down in Summer street.

Then she consented to be photographed, and she sat at the editor's desk. Dick Sears, the photographer, arrived. Sears is soon to depart for France and this was one of his last assignments. Seeing the lady in the editor's chair, he pretended to assume that she was the editor, so he remarked:

"I would like very much to have a raise in salary."

"For what?" responded the editor pro tem.

The photographer was so crushed by this retort that he made his pictures and vanished. Then Miss White left three dashing studio likenesses of herself and vanished.

She probably made the ball game on time.

WEAKNESS RELIEVED BY "BALMWORT"

Many men and women gain strength. The least exertion tires them. Dull, aches, pains like rheumatism, depression, the "blues," come easily. Ambition and energy are always at low ebb. What is the cause? The cause may vary—but if the Kidneys and Bladder are not doing their work perfectly—you can make a bet—that's where the trouble lies. This lady suffered 12 years: Mrs. E. Ripp, 614 W. 12th St., Oak Park, Ill., writes: "Your Balmwort Kidney Tablets certainly have done wonders for me. I have been ailing for 12 years with Kidney and Bladder weakness, but feel like a NEW WOMAN NOW." All druggists sell them.—Advertisement.

O'Neil, Jr., one of the sixteen survivors of a ship torpedoed in March, gave a dramatic description of the submarine's attack on the vessel, as a result of which fifty-one sailors lost their lives.

SHUMAN SERVICE AT RESIDENCE ON FRIDAY

The funeral of A. Shuman, head of the A. Shuman Company, who died early today, will be held at the residence, No. 90 Commonwealth avenue, on Friday at 12 o'clock. The service will be conducted by Rev. Dr. E. A. Horton, chaplain of the Massachusetts Senate, and a friend of the deceased. Burial will be private.

Mr. Shuman was born in Prussia, May 31, 1839, and through his own unaided industry and frugality he bcame one of the richest men in Boston.

He was a very small child when the Shuman family crossed the ocean and settled in Newburg, N. Y. He remained in Newburg until he was sixteen years old, when he started out in the world to make his fortune, going to Providence. After four years of hard work in that city he became dissatisfied with the opportunities there afforded him and moved to Boston, opening a small clothing store in Roxbury, on Washington street, opposite Vernon street.

While retaining the Roxbury store, Mr. Shuman, in 1869, entered into partnership with John Phillips, under the firm name of Phillips, Shuman & Co., for a wholesale business in boys' clothing. The concern prospered greatly and occupied a large building on Summer street, until it was destroyed in the great fire of November 9, 1872.

Immediately after this calamity the concern secured a building on Washington street, occupying what afterward became a portion of the site of the present great establishment of A. Shuman & Co. On this spot the firm opened a retail department for the sale of boys' clothing.

He was intensely loyal and patriotic and his love for the "Stars and Stripes" was evinced by his gift of a beautiful American flag to the Boston City Hospital, of which he was a trustee for 32 years, being president of the board most of the time. To this institution he gave much of his time, thought and work.

Mr. Shuman was married to Miss Hettie Lang on November 3, 1861. To her he was a most devoted husband and her memory was sacredly treasured after her death. In her name, in 1905, he gave $500 to the Woman's Charity Club to be used in the aid of needy nurses, and two years later also in her memory he provided Floating Hospital excursions for mothers and children.

He leaves three sons and three daughters, Edwin A., Sidney E. and George H. Shuman, and Mrs. Emma Weil, Mrs. Alexander Steinert and Mrs. I. A. Ratshesky. Two of the sons, Edwin and Sidney, since their school days have been associated with their father, both being members of the firm.

COL. LIVERMORE ESTATE APPRAISED AT $341,203

With Calumet & Hecla, the rich mining stock, quoted at $440 per share, who wouldn't like to own a block of it?

But Colonel Thomas L. Livermore, the late vice-president of the big corporation and known as its head and front, did not own a single share of Calumet & Hecla at the time of his death.

This striking fact became known in the announcement of his estate today. His estate is appraised at $341,203 and included ten $1,000 Liberty Bonds, a thousand shares of American Telephone & Telegraph and shares in many other dividend-paying corporations.

ENTRIES POUR IN FOR NAVY DAY EVENTS

Late entries for the various events of Navy Day are still pouring in so fast that, according to Lieutenant Leon M. Little of the committee, the carnival is shaping up as one of the biggest things in aquatic sports that Boston has ever seen, or is to see.

The scene of the Navy Day sports is to be the Charles River Basin, the day next Saturday, and the time 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon, which hour marks the start of a long program of rowing, sailing, swimming races and diving contests. Almost everybody in Greater Boston knows all this by now, but it will bear repetition.

A limit was set on the time for filing entries. But long past the hour of filing they continued to come in and the committee, decided to stretch a point and let all the late-comers take part.

HAWAIIANS ENTER RUN.

Among the late entrants is a team of Hawaiian swimmers recently landed from a cruiser to represent the Charlestown Navy Yard. The Hawaiians are all swimmers from childhood and Hawaiians have been "called the nearest thing to a pickerel" so speedy in cleaving the water are they and so much at home in it.

However, if these Hawaiian "fish" expect to walk off with the prizes they are going to be disappointed, according to the relay team from a United States battleship representing the same station. The swimming relay course will cover a distance of 200 yards, each swimmer having to do fifty yards.

Neither will the yeogirls play any secondary part in the boat races. They have entered at least fourteen wherry boat crews and there is the most intense rivalry among them.

15 CREWS IN CUTTER RACE.

In the cutter races fifteen crews were entered very early with all the signs pointing to many more than that number in the final summing up, while ten whalebacks will take part in the races for those craft and ten sailing boats will try for the handsome cup which is offered by the Boston AMERICAN as well as numerous other trophies to the winners in other events.

In addition there are numerous entries for the swimming and diving events. A special event on the program will be the Monte Cristo sack dive by Chief Boatswain's Mate Elliot Church. Another special event is the cutter race of one and seven-eighths miles between a crew from the Aviation School and the Bumkin Island crew. The Bumkin Island crew say it is all over but the singing and they have the song. It was written by Captain Camden, commandant of the island, and it is to be sung by a big chorus of yeowomen when the race is under way. If the crew is like the song it is a winner. Here are the words:

BUMKIN ISLAND.

We sing of an Isle that's a gem of the deep,
Where sailors are made by the score.
Where none but the hardiest sailor can keep
A footing on its rock-bound shore.
But we love it all the same,
We love its dear old name,
Though we're working all the day, rain or fair,
So we'll learn to fight
On the top of its height
'Till we're called to the front over there.

Refrain.

Bumkin Island! Bumkin Island!
The fairest spot in the sea.
With the lustre of the diamond,
A spot where I love to be.
Bumkin Island! Bumkin Island!
May your fame be spread afar;
You're a jewel dropped from skyland,
For you'll help us win the war.

MRS. BINGHAM LEFT ONLY SMALL NEW YORK ESTATE

New York, June 26.—The State comptroller filed in the Hall of Records a report showing that the New York estate left by Mrs. Lily Bingham, former wife of Henry M. Flagler, the Standard oil multi-millionaire, amounts to only $566,829. The bulk of her estate, estimated at about $100,000,000, is in Kentucky. Her home was in Louisville.

The New York property consisted of $467,840 real property and the remainder in personalty. The personal property included the following items: Furs $9,000, paintings $12,917, jewelry $74,000. The jewels were made up of a collection of thirty-nine pieces.

TEACHER 51 YEARS, NEVER MISSED DAY

Miss Emily M. Pevear, principal of the Hugh O'Brien school, who retires from active service this week, has never had a leave of absence or suffered a day's illness during fifty-one and one-half years of teaching.

"Now that my days in the schoolroom are over, I am going to take a long rest—and learn to keep house," said Miss Pevear, who lives with her two nieces at the old family home in Dudley street, Roxbury. "I have been looking forward to this time for years, and am glad to retire. That does not mean, however, that I have not enjoyed my work."

COURT TO RULE ON LOCAL BEER PRICES

The facts in dispute between George F. Monahan, a saloon keeper, at No. 20 Marshall street, and the Boston Liquor Dealers' Association, concerning the raise in price of beer and ale to consumers are to be heard by a master, and a report made to the Superior Court. The court then will determine whether beer shall be sold at five or ten cents a glass.

DEMOCRACY — BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 26, 1918. — LIBERTY

SEE END OF "BOOTLEG" SALES

By S. HARRY FERRIS.

Aboard the Receiving Ship at Boston, June 26.—The sentencing of thirty-eight bootleggers in the Federal Court to two years' imprisonment in jail is looked upon by members of the ship's provost guard as a long step toward ridding Boston and its vicinity of the illegal dispensers of liquor.

Lieutenant Leonard, in charge of the guard, has long contended that a number of good stiff jail sentences on offenders would do more than anything else to put a stop to the traffic. In the past judges have been inclined to look with leniency upon offenders, and the fines and light imprisonment sentences that have been dealt out have had little effect so big have been the profits of the business.

The sailors, who have been planning to take advantage of the recent order granting them fifteen days' vacation between July 1 and October 1, are notified in a recent letter from Rear Admiral Spencer S. Wood that the furloughs may be taken, if the men prefer, in sections, a few days at a time. This is agreeable news to the boys who have homes near Boston, as they can now arrange to run home for a few days several times during the Summer.

MALDEN BOY GASSED IN GERMAN RAID

Private Joseph R. Nolan of L Company, 101st Regiment, has been gassed and is in the hospital. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick J. Nolan of No. 32 Park avenue, Malden, received this information in a letter from their son. It reads in part:

"Dear Mother—No doubt you have read all kinds of reports of the raid pulled off by us, and I suppose you have also received word that I have been wounded by gas. I just got a little taste of it and am now O. K.

"We lost a few men, but they died fighting and died soldiers, and I know their reward is heaven. I was near Billie Trafton (killed in action) when he got hit. He was the first to fall, and it certainly made things worse for the Germans. We only took one prisoner, and we wouldn't have taken him had he been a little older."

ROBERT EDESON MARRIED FOR THIRD TIME

Robert Edeson, actor, matinee idol, artist, athlete, farmer and playwright, is married again. It is his third venture, his bride being Miss Mary Newcomb, who is playing an ingenue role in the "Sick-a-Bed" company. The license was taken out in Newark, N. J., and it was expected that the couple would appear at the City Hall to be married on Tuesday, but instead they stole a march on the public and were married on Monday evening. The bride's age was given as 24 and the bridegroom's as 49.

Mr. Edeson's life has had its full share of romances. His first wife was Ellen Burg, who died. His second was a Brookline woman, Georgie Eliot Porter, daughter of Linn Boyd Porter, the author, and formerly the wife of Charles Mackay, the actor. They were divorced in 1907.

In 1908 she married Edeson, divorcing him in turn this year. Their marriage, although quiet, was a notable social event, and in marked contrast to the unheralded wedding of this week in New Jersey. The Edeson-Porter marriage was a conventional function, with matron of honor, best man, white lace bridal gown, tulle veil and orange blossoms. It took place at the home of the bride's parents in Brookline, and for a long time thereafter the couple seemed to be very happy.

A WONDERFUL HUSBAND.

In bringing suit for divorce, the then Mrs. Edeson said: "I love my husband. I shall always love him, but I will not stand in the way of his happiness."

For the wife knew that she had a rival, according to a letter written to a friend at that time, in which she said:

"My heart has been torn and left to perish under the most terrible circumstances a really adoring wife must bear. It is almost a year since my husband has been in love with a girl twenty-four years old, so pure, so brilliant, so youthful, so loved by him, that my own life has been an image of aches and fears and longing which threatened my mind.

"I am very tired. He has been a wonderful husband, father, friend and lover. He says I am in no way at fault. He says he respects me more than any other woman in the world. He even admits that he loves me a little still."

DISCOVERED BY EDESON.

In her divorce suit against Charles Mackay, she had named Lillian Kemble, the actress.

Report that Mr. Edeson was to marry Ethel Levey, the divorced wife of George M. Cohan, was at one time widespread. They both admitted the intended marriage in 1907, when Miss Levey was playing at a theatre in Boston. Both went abroad that Summer, but the marriage did not take place as expected.

The present Mrs. Edeson has acted in vaudeville with her husband. Before going on the stage she was known as a suffrage worker, having taken part in speaking tours in northern New York. She stated in a recent interview that it was Mr. Edeson who discovered her as a stage type.

EDITORIAL

The excellent condition of the horses and mules at Camp Devens shows the great care they have received at the hands of the soldiers of the Seventy-Sixth Division. The horse flesh at the cantonment ranks with the best in the country and there is a lasting affection between the soldiers and the animals. One of the worst things you can do to a soldier at Devens is abuse his horse.

The mule still holds its exalted position in the American army and as a rule pays no more attention to a veteran than to a drafted "Doughboy." The extensive courses in equitation and the care of their mounts, however, have turned the rankest of amateurs into excellent horsemen and it is only another indication of what the national army can do when it is put to the test.

BAKER PRAISES MERCHANT MARINE

To set at rest criticisms of merchant marine service, which are believed to have been put in circulation by pro-Germans, national headquarters of the United States Shipping Board recruiting service, at the Boston Custom House, today made public this statement from Secretary of War Newton D. Baker:

If there is any patriotic obligation upon men anywhere to win this war it rests upon all of us who are in any degree associated with the business of getting to Europe the supplies which are necessary for the maintenance of our great army there. It, therefore, is one of the highest patriotic obligations. The men who are in the sailor trade, particularly those who sail the cargo steamers, are faking as high hazards and performing as perilous and patriotic service as any man anywhere. They themselves perhaps hardly realize it.

$10,000 OFFERED FOR JOB BY DRAFTEE

By WILLIAM FLYNN.

Camp Devens, Ayer, June 26.—The recent investigation of graft in connection with the granting of government war contracts has also revealed the fact that some of the New England draftees have attempted to buy government jobs to secure deferred classification in the draft.

One soldier now at this cantonment offered $10,000 for a position with the Emergency Fleet Corporation. The offer was made in a letter written to one of the high officials in the corporation while the writer was a civilian. After the man was drafted he wrote another letter to the same official asking him to use his influence to have him transferred into a forestry battalion.

Both of these letters found their way into the hands of officials at Division headquarters. A survey of his personnel records failed to show that he had any experience as a ship builder or knew anything about forestry, and he was tansferred into a line organization.

Enlisted men in the infantry regiments are now engaged in field firing on the combat range at Still River. Companies at a time are blazing away at silhouette targets with real ammunition, and the rattle of the rifles sounds as though a full fledged battle was in progress. Much importance is being placed upon this form of training.

Close and distant observation is occupying the attention of the men in the intelligence sections of the seventy-sixth dixision in Still River. Instruction in close observation which includes raids, patrols and trench reconnaissance, is being given by Captain Norman Harrower and distant observation from roads, sniping posts and other points of vantage by Captain Arthur F. Brown, both of the headquarters intelligence staff.

SOUTH BOSTON DENTIST CITED FOR BRAVERY

Citation in general orders for "gallant conduct," in leading a party of men out into No Man's Land, has been won by Dr. Patrick I. Kelley, formerly of No. 8 Bellflower street, Dorchester, and a widely known South Boston dentist, who enlisted just before the Mexican trouble and is now a top sergeant in the 103d Ambulance Company, 101st United States Infantry.

TWENTY NATIONS IN PAGEANT ON THE FOURTH

Twenty or more national groups, many of them in costume, will take part in a parade and pageant on Boston Common on July 4, bringing the city's celebration to a close. They promise a turnout of more than 8,000. This developed at the meeting of the committee on loyalty of the Citizens' Public Celebration Association, which met at City Hall last evening. There were representatives of twenty-two national groups present to confer with Chairman Daniel A. Mackay and the members of his subcommittee. Chairman John J. Keenan of the main committee was also present.

All of those present agreed to gather as many as possible of their people, with bands, for the parade, which will leave Park square shortly before sunset.

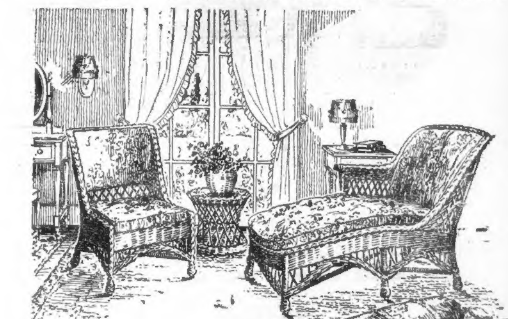

Brigadier-General John J. Sullivan, who will be chief marshal of the parade, will have a member of each of the national groups on his staff. These staff members will all be in costume and will be a decidedly picturesque feature. The line will move from Park square through Boylston and Tremont streets and will enter the Common, where exercises are to be held on Flag Staff Hill, when the flag is lowered at "retreat."

They will then take up positions about the frog pond, where, on a platform built over the pool, folk dances will be shown and folk songs and national airs will be sung. Frank Chouteau Brown, the architect, who has had experience in this line, will be in charge of the pageant features.

It is hoped to secure leave for a large number of the men at Camp Devens, such as the Syrians, Italians and other national groups, in order that they may take part in this demonstration. It has not been decided definitely, but it is probable that a company of coast artillery will take part in the sunset exercises at the flag staff.

The following will be represented: Ukranians, 250, with a band; Albanians, 500, with mandolin orchestra, band and male chorus; Armenians, 500, with a band and probably the 300 Armenian soldiers now at Camp Devens; Czeck-Slovaks, 100; Chinese, 500, with band, boy scouts and Chinese bugle corps; Danish, fifty; French, number not determined; Hungarians, fifty; Italians, 2,000, with three bands; Jews, 500, and band; Letts, 150, with band; Lithuanians, 3,000, with three bands; Norwegians, 200; Russians, 400, with band and church choir that will sing Russian folk songs; Polish, number not determined; Swedish, 300, with singing club in costume; Syrians, 300, with band; Lebonites, 250, with band; British and Canadian military delegations; Greeks, 500, with band, and a group of Japanese.

MAYOR IS INVITED TO GIVE LOYALTY ADDRESS ON CHILDREN'S DAY

Professor John O'Shea, supervisor of music of Boston public schools.

Superintendent of Schools Franklin B. Dyer has arranged to have announcements of Children's Day made in the schools today and it is expected that thousands of boys and girls are expected to respond to his invitation to be present at next Saturday's exercises.

At a meeting held in the rooms of the Boston Committee on Public Safety at City Hall, members of the joint committee of the Boston Women's Committee on Food Conservation and the Child Welfare Committee arranged for a special exhibit at the Children's House, Boston Common, next Saturday. There will be a special food demonstration by Mrs. Margaret J. Stannard, city leader of emergency food conservation.

During the meeting, over which Mr. Heath presided, Felix Vorenberg suggested that the Boston Committee on Public Safety install a canteen in the centre of the city, preferably on Boston Common, where men in the service could purchase ice cream, sandwiches, etc., at cost. He told of a recent visit to New York where he observed the working of the canteen on Fifth avenue. He said that sailors and soldiers patronized the place extensively as they were able to buy ice cream for five cents and sandwiches for five cents.

Mr. Heath called attention to the fact that the establishment of a canteen such as Mr. Vorenberg suggested is under advisement of the Executive Board, to whose attention it was called by Mrs. Evelyn Fewsley Coe. Mr. Heath read from Mrs. Coe's letter, "The Committee (War Service) has studied the problem of the enlisted man off duty and wandering the city streets, and has come to feel that there is great need of a place on Boston Common where a man may get something to eat or drink at a moderate cost.

"We wish to ask the Public Safety Committee to provide a portable house to be run by the War Service Committee as a Canteen, to be known as the War Service Army and Navy Canteen. We see a great need and wish to fill it, and any help from the Boston Committee on Public Safety will be appreciated."

Felix Vorenberg and George P. Johnson, chairman of the Food Production Committee, were appointed to confer with Mrs. Coe to arrange for the canteen. Messrs. Vorenberg and Johnson began work at once. Before leaving City Hall they called upon the Mayor to get permission to raise sufficient funds to start the canteen.

George F. Johnson of the R. H. White Company volunteered to give a special window display to help make Loyalty Week successful, and the offer was accepted. Mr. Vorenberg made a similar offer for Gilchrist Company, with which he is connected. Both said that they would consult the managements of other stores to get them to do likewise.

E. R. Jennings of the Central Labor Union explained to the committee that he would arrange the co-operation of the labor forces of the city to make Loyalty Week a success.

Arrangements for the Children's Day program were left in the hands of Miss Mary A. Barr. Miss Barr is planning to have a number of school boy military organizations assist in the Children's Day exercises. She will also have charge of the entire program for the Children's House on that day.

Indorsements of "Loyalty Week" follow:

By TIMOTHY W. KELLY, Massachusetts Department Commander, United Spanish War Veterans.

So much has already been written about the necessity for wholehearted patriotism and loyal support of our government in the present crisis, that the resources of the English language seem practically exhausted, and it is hard to say anything that has not already been said, and probably said better than I could say it.

It may be useful, however, again to call the attention of the people to the fact that there are many ways of being patriotic and loyal other than making the last supreme sacrifice in the trenches. There is a vast army at home who by reason of sex, age or physical disability, are prevented from actively participating in the war, but whose earning powers have not been diminished.

All of us who fall within this class can help to maintain the men who are actually fighting at the front even though we cannot go ourselves, and it seems peculiarly appropriate during the activities of the War Savings Stamp Drive to urge upon this large number of stay-at-homes that they invest their savings in these government securities.

As Department Commander of the Spanish War Veterans I would say a word in regard to this organization, of what it is doing and what it has done in the present war. No organization can show more advocates of preparedness and loyalty than the Spanish War Veterans in Captain Hobson, Theodore Roosevelt and the late lamented Augustus P. Gardner.

Our organization has furnished such men as General Pershing in command of the American Expeditionary Forces in France, Admiral Sims in charge of the American Naval Forces in European waters, and practically every regiment leaving Massachusetts was headed by a Spanish War Veteran—Colonel Logan, Colonel Stover, Colonel Perry, Colonel Hayes, etc. The Department of Massachusetts has furnished over 500 men in this war.

By W. T. A. FITZGERALD, Suffolk County Register of Deeds—

The Public Safety Committee of Boston is doing a grand patriotic work in planning for a Loyalty Week. This will do much to offset hostile and insidious propaganda that has been allowed to exist too long in this community. The committee is to be highly congratulated upon its patriotism and foresight in arranging the program.

It is particularly appropriate that the first day should be called "Newspaper Day," when loyal newspapers of this city in stirring editorials will strike the proper keynote for the week's celebration. The power of the press is great in a democracy and it will have a wonderful opportunity to do good work for the cause of America on this occasion.

Official Program of Loyalty Week

The following is the official program for Loyalty Week:

Friday, June 28.—Newspaper Day—Day on which Boston newspapers have been invited to print Loyalty editions and editorials.

Saturday, June 29.—Children's Day—Patriotic celebration on Boston Common at 11 o'clock. Singing of "Star Spangled Banner" and "America" by the children. In addition children will recite Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag and Country. Music by band and other features.

Sunday, June 30.—Church Day—Day on which Boston clergymen have been invited by the committee in charge to preach Loyalty sermons.

Monday, July 1.—Letter Day. On this day letters are to be written by residents of Boston to some soldier or sailor in the service.

Tuesday, July 2.—Angelus Day—Special prayer to be recited at noon for victory of the Allies.

Wednesday, July 3.—Sacrifice Day—Promise to be made on this day by every Bostonian to give up for duration of war some indulgence and spend price of same in war support.

Thursday, July 4.—Neighborhood celebrations with simple patriotic exercises. Gala program on Boston Common, participated in by all races in the evening. Lowering of the colors will be one of the features. Songs and dances will be given by the various groups on a specially erected platform over the Frog Pond.

Filene's

Miss Marion Hollins winner of forty cups

MISS HOLLINS, according to a Sunday Advertiser news article, turned in to be melted up 40 championship cups won by her as the best woman whip and four-in-hand driver, as a golf player and as a polo player!

She gave all 40 that represented so many victories in order that her country might have the silver they contained!

In New York, Mrs. Frank Vanderlip, wife of the famous banker, and Mrs. Charles Tiffany are leaders in the movement to exchange old metal for War Savings Stamps.

The patriotic reason in back of this, and the reason the movement claims the backing of such prominent people is that the United States Government wants not only to borrow your money, but it wants gold and silver bullion.

The Filene store is doing the same thing here in Boston. We have an appraiser who will weigh your old gold and silver and pay you for them in War Savings Stamps.

Also, navy blue taffeta tunic dresses, $12.50

Many good points to recommend them. We think you'll like the double-breasted effect blouse, the round necked vestee of white Georgette, double, the full gathered tunic skirt.

Misses' white canvas shoes—rubber soled and heeled

Sizes 2½ to 6½.

Misses' "sneakers"

Some with heels, others without; brown or white, high or low cut, sizes 2½ to 7, $1.65 to $2.25.

Misses' fine genuine white buckskin oxfords, $3; pumps, $3. Sizes 2½ to 8.

(Filene's—fourth floor—mail orders filled)

Misses' leather soled white canvas shoes

Oxfords or pumps, sizes 2½ to 8, $5.

Women's tub skirts

Racks and racks of freshness in skirts that wash—even the very lovely ones of satin, crepe de Chine and Georgette crepe, from $8.50 to $19.75, are tubbable.

$3 buys a good gabardine skirt. One perfectly plain style has not even a button for trimming, but is very good-looking with its straight, wide belt and set-in slash pockets. Another has buttons and flapped pockets. Both are a grade of gabardine not ordinarily used in skirts at this price.

(Filene's—mail orders filled—fifth floor)

Women's sea suits

A NEWCOMER AMONG THE JERSEYS—

Women's one-piece jersey suits are the favorites, of course. Heavy wool, $7.50; wool with cotton tights, $6; part wool, $4.

Sizes up to 50 in larger women's wool jersey one-piece suits with cotton tights, $6.

Women's good black taffeta sea suits, piped in color, are selected by women who like a bit of sleeve. $7.50.

Black surf satin bathing suits are preferred by some women because while they, too, are made in one-piece models, a good deal of fullness is worked into them in the way of little tuckings, pockets, etc. $3.50 to $6.

Picturesque beach capes of shimmering sheet rubber or rubberized silk in gay colors, $29.50 to $39.50.

Women's bathing footwear, 75c to $2.50.

Sea millinery, 25c to $5.75.

Separate tights, $1.25 to $4.50.

(Filene's—mail orders filled—fifth floor)

Heavy silk jersey, trimmed with crocheted wool lace, a Paris idea. (See sketch.)

Suit itself is bright green, tights golden brown, "lace" white, $25.

PUT OLD ENEMY TO UTTER ROUT

Tells how to lift off that touchy corn without hurting one particle

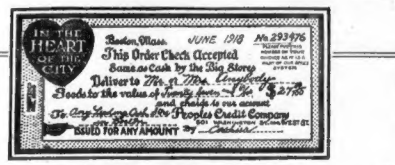

Hospital records show that every time you cut a corn you invite lockjaw or blood poison, which is needless, says a Cincinnati authority, who tells you that a quarter ounce of a drug called freezone can be obtained at little cost from the drug store but is sufficient to rid one's feet of every hard or soft corn or callus.

You simply apply a few drops of this freezone on a tender, aching corn and the soreness is instantly relieved. Shortly the entire corn can be lifted out, root and all, without pain.

This drug is sticky but dries at once and is claimed to just shrivel up any corn without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin.

If your wife wears high heels she will be glad to know of this.—Advertisement.

BRAVES OLD JINX ON THE JOB

Stallings and Band to Make Supreme Effort to Down the Giants Today

By NICK FLATLEY.

George T. Stallings is still paging some Jack the Giant Killer. Art Nehf flopped in the role yesterday, and today it looked as if the job had been wished over onto Bunny Hearn.

Yarns of poor pitching and a disorganized team preceded the Gothamites here, but one wonders where they originated. Pol Perritt pitched just such a game as did Al Demaree on the preceding afternoon, and landed a hollow 4 to 1 victory.

He was punched safely only four times, and the lone Brave counter came in the ninth, after Rawlings had hit and pilfered second and third unmolested.

LONG WALLOP WASTED.

Wickland clouted out a triple with one gone in the seventh, but neither Red Smith nor Koney could pry him loose from the last stop. That just about represented the Boston offensive. Somehow or another it seems to evaporate when the Giants come into sight.

Nehf, on the other hand, was hammered quite a bit in the sixth and ninth chapters, in each of which the hostiles knocked over a pair of runs. Hits by Burns, Fletcher and Thorpe did the mid game damage, while the great Heiniezim, Rodriguez and again Burns put the final crusher on.

The same Mister Burns, in addition to poling out a pair of run-making doubles, played a whale of a game in center and looks as if he was just built for that position. He gets more range than he had over in left, and he sure doesn't let anything get by him. He robbed Rawlings of what seemed a certain triple by one fine sprinting catch.

This was also Thrift Stamp Field Day at the Home of Big Things. A series of contests with Braves and Giants competing for Stamp prizes was to start at 3 o'clock. These included fungo hitting, throwing for distance and accuracy and running the bases. A band of sixty pieces was to help along the occasion.

RAWLINGS IN HIGH.

The Boston sub for the inimitable Rabbit is right up with the best of them. Others are flashier and look faster, but Rawlings gets everything that is hit near him. Though he appears awkward at times, he always comes up with the ball and gets it to first, or anywhere else ahead of the runner.

He has his head up all the time and knows what to do with the ball when he gets it. His scrap and pep help the team along more than a little, and for a chap who looked like a poor imitation of the real thing back in the Spring, he sure is a wonder.

Whatever the Braves accomplish this year, not a little of the credit will be coming to J. Rawlings, Esq., of the Pacific coast.

FOUR SOUTHERN STARS BOUGHT BY BARROW

By H. W. LANIGAN.

Manager Ed Barrow of the Red Sox has wisely gone marketing, as most any day now Everett Scott and Fred Thomas, two of his infield stars; Carl Mays, reliable right-hander, and Walter Mayer, third-string catcher, will be called to the colors.

All four players are in Class 1A of the draft. Scott alone is married. Everett's draft rating was raised last week from Class 4 to Class 1. He was given until today to file objections and has asked for re-classification on the ground of dependents.

A telegram to the AMERICAN from Secretary Larry Graver, in New York with the Sox, reports the purchase of Bluhm, Barbare, Stansbury and Edmonson from the New Orleans (American Association) club.

Bluhm is a first baseman, a sweet sticker and reliable fielder, also fairly experienced, which indicates that Barrow plans returning McInnis to work at the far corner just as soon as Thomas departs.

Barbare and Stansbury are infielders. The former had a try-out by Cleveland several seasons ago. He's a rangy, awkwardly constructed performer but gave every indication of developing and ought to fill the bill at this date.

Edmonson is an outfielder and a veteran of both the Southern and Texas circuits. He's long been rated one of the best minor league base hit makers in the game.

Graver states that the four Pelicans will report to Barrow in Washington, the next stand on the trip. This is further evidence that Barrow has the hunch he is going to lose a regular or two before the week is over.

WAR HERO THOUGHT TO BE EX-PIRATE HURLER

Pittsburgh, June 26.—President Dreyfuss of the Pittsburgh baseball club, believes that the Lieutenant W. C. Ponder of Mangan, Okla., who recently was awarded the French war cross for daring exploits in the air, is the former Pirate pitcher, E. C. Ponder, whose home was in that city.

If Dreyfuss is correct Ponder is the first major league player to win the war cross.

ORCHESTRA MUSIC

Corbett's Corner

By JAMES J. CORBETT.

The pugilistic game right now is in a comatose condition. It isn't quite dead—but it seems to have one foot in the grave. Perhaps it will revive and come back to its glorious popularity of the other days. But I doubt it. And the fighters themselves are largely to blame.

The war has been only a contributing cause to the decadence of the sport. If there hadn't been a war I feel that the boxing game wouldn't be a whole lot better off than it is at this time.

The war didn't cause the New York Legislature to bar public boxing entertainments from the State, which for many years has been the pugilistic mecca.

The boxers, by their tactics, so disgusted the law makers that it was deemed advisable to bar them from foisting more burlesques upon the public.

The war didn't cause governors of various States to bar Jess Willard and Fred Fulton from performing in their commonwealths.

Willard and Fulton and those involved in the promotion of the called-off bout so disgusted the chief executives by their squabblings over money matters that they were moved to official opposition.

LACK OF REAL FIGHTERS.

Another thing that has killed much of the popularity of the sport is the lack of real fighters in the heavyweight division.

The public always has exhibited far more interest in the doings of the big men than in the fighters of the smaller divisions. Right now there aren't enough topnotch heavyweights to count on one hand.

Willard, Fulton and Dempsey are about the only outstanding heavyweights of today. Gunboat Smith, Frank Moran, Al Reich, Carl Morris, Charlie Weinert, Jim Coffey, Bill Brennan, Jim Flynn—all were prominent a year or two ago.

But one after another has quit the game or been beaten so decisively that he cannot be ranked as worthy of championship consideration.

And as for Willard, Fulton and Dempsey—well, Willard has made himself so genuinely unpopular that instead of adding prestige to the sport that made him wealthy and famous, he has accomplished the opposite result.

Fulton, too, messed up things by his failure to assist in the patriotic entertainments, leaving Dempsey as the only member of the heavyweight division who is ranked as a real fighter and, at the same time, a rather popular battler.

But in some sections there is the belief that Dempsey, when put to the test, will be found wanting as a really great warrior.

SWAPPING THE TITLE.

Interest in the bantamweight, welterweight and middleweight championships has been at a low ebb for a long time—and lower now than ever before.

For nearly three years there hasn't been an undisputed bantam champ.

Not since Stanley Ketchel died in in 1910 has anyone established sole and exclusive right to the middleweight title.

For several months Ted Lewis and Jack Britton have alternated in claiming the welterweight title, but no one ever got really excited about it.

To the public, the passing of the "title" from Lewis to Britton, back to Lewis and then back to Britton, via decisions in rather short bouts, didn't create any wild enthusiasm.

But the worst thing that has happened to the fight game is the fact that all the boys for the past few years have confined themselves almost exclusively to short six and ten-round bouts.

That's no pugilistic test. Six rounds wasn't even a workout for the boys in the days of Sullivan, Fitzsimmons, Jeffries, Maher, Sharkey, Ruhlin, Mitchell, McCoy, Jackson, Choynski, Gans, Dixon, Erne, McGovern, McAuliffe, Ryan, Hawkins and the other satellites of the bygone era.

Linart and Madonna Out to Relieve Wiley of Brassard Title

George Wiley, of Syracuse, N. Y., will defend his title as Brassard champion against Victor Linart of Belgium and Vincent Madonna, Italian champion, at the Revere cycle track tonight.

Linart's sensational performance Monday night in a five-mile exhibition has the bike fans still discussing his time, many claiming it was the fastest ever ridden at the beach oval. However, no official time was taken.

Many followers of the game are turning to the Belgium to win tonight on this account, but Wiley and Madonna are sure to fight it out for first honors.

Wiley landed first place at the last meeting of this trio, after one of the best races ever witnessed at the beach, and he is in tip-top condition to defend his title.

The regular card of amateur and professional events will complete the program.

BENNY LEONARD WAY TOO FAST FOR BRITTON

By W. S. FARNSWORTH.

Philadelphia, June 26.—In the same ring where he knocked out Johnny Kilbane, featherweight champion, Benny Leonard, lightweight title holder, gave Jack Britton, Chicago welterweight, an artistic boxing lesson in a rapid-fire six-round battle.

Outweighed probably by about five pounds, Leonard outboxed and outslugged his heavier opponent. Four of the rounds belonged to the little Hebrew, while the Irishman deserved an even break in the third and fifth spasms.

Twice Britton was in trouble. Just a few seconds before the bell in the third Leonard landed his only hard right of the night on Jack's chin. The welterweight was badly shaken, and the bell cost Leonard an opportunity to follow up his opportunity.

It was the same situation at the tail-end of the fourth. Britton had just fallen short with a right-hander for the head, and Leonard stepped in with two terrific lefts to the jaw.

TOMMY ROBSON OUTSCORED BY TED LEWIS

By RINGSIDE.

Ted (Kid) Lewis of England, world's champion welterweight, proved entirely too classy for Malden Tommy Robson at the Arena, getting the decision of both judges at the end of twelve rounds of busy battling.

A switch in referees was made. Instead of Billy Roche of New York officiating, as programmed, Dan Lane of the Armory A. A., was the third man in the ring, with Billy Hamilton and Al Lippe doing the judging.

Lewis was far cleverer than Tommy in the boxing end of the game, crossing his right time after time to the head, then tying Robson up. Robson's aim throughout the bout was to crowd Lewis in order to get in on the body, and at times Tommy made it mighty interesting for the Briton.

The bout was marred by a little too much clinching and holding. In justice to Robson, however, it was Lewis who was guilty of doing the holding.

Lewis had a big shade at the halfway mark, after which Robson picked up a bit, but when things got going good for Tommy the wily Briton started his holding.

Joe Curry of New Haven, Ct., sprung a surprise on the fans by taking Johnny Buckley of South Boston, into camp in the semifinal at eight rounds. Curry proved a little too stiff for the Freeman entry.

Young Al. Thomas of New Bedford bested Mickey Snyder of Roxbury in six tame rounds.

While Gerard Gianni of Lawrence, and Johnny Gray of Chelsea, were mixing it up in the first round of the opening bout, both boys went through the ropes to the floor. Gray got a severe shaking up and was unable to continue. Referee Maffitt Flaherty properly calling it "no contest."

Gossip of Gloveland

THE TWO $50 Liberty Bonds Billy Henderson put up as a forfeit on behalf of Eddie Shevlin for a match with Fred Dyer, the singer-boxer, are still in our hands. Guess they will mature before they are covered.

THIS JACK MARTIN who is slated to meet Walter Butler in the semi-final at the Commercial A. C. Friday night is some fighter. Take a peek at this: Whipped Walter Mohr twice, did the same to Chick West on two occasions, and put up twelve-round draws with Mel Coogan and Willie Beecher. He also fought Phil Bloom in a no-decision contest. From where we sit Walter and he should keep the fans on edge.

BOBBY DYSON and Charley Mitchell are still neck and neck and the chances are they will get together again shortly. Their last two bouts were peaches.

WHEN THIS "work-or-fight" rule gets working the old alibi, "Well, I didn't get a chance to train," will be used by many a boxer when he happens to be on the losing end.

Reclassification Plea Is Entered by Scott; Three Mates Are Awaiting Call

New York, June 26.—The status in the army draft of Everett Scott, Fred Thomas, Carl Mays and Walter Mayer, of the Red Sox, is still unsettled. All four are in Class 1A and are waiting the call to colors from their local boards.

Scott is still to hear regarding his appeal for reclassification. Scott's home board at Bluffton, Ind., placed him in Class 1A despite the fact he has a wife and two children. He previously was in 4A. The famous shortstop appealed to his district board on the ground of dependents.

Mays and Thomas declared today they tried to enlist in the naval service, but their local boards refused to grant them the necessary letter to enter any branch of the service other than the army.

DODGERS BUY BOXMAN FROM SOUTHERN CLUB

New York, June 25.—President Ebbets of the Brooklyn Dodgers announces the purchase of Pitcher Dick Robertson of the New Orleans (Southern Association) club. He has received orders to report to Manager Robinson at once.

SOX TO TIGHTEN THEIR GRIP ON FIRST PLACE

New York, June 26.—With the assistance of Babe Ruth's bludgeon the Red Sox defeated the Yankees for the first time on the Polo Grounds this season, 7 to 3.

Ruth contributed a home run in the first inning, scoring a runner ahead of him. It was his third circuit clout on the local lot this campaign and his ninth of the year.

The wallop netted only two runs, but it helped greatly in undermining the Yankee morale and opening the way to the Red Sox' victory.

Ruth's slam was the mightiest ever produced at the Polo Grounds. It came with Whiteman on first base. The ball cracked against the concrete of the upper tier in the furthermost right hand and caromed deep into centre field.

Russell was pitching, and he vacated the premises in the fourth, when the Red Sox bombarded him for three runs. He was succeeded by Finneran, who lasted out the game.

Sam Jones pitched a masterly game for the visitors, his performance saving first place to the Boston clan.

Jones yielded only seven hits and was at his best when Yankee hits would have meant runs.

Amos Strunk was not in Boston's lineup, owing to an injured foot. He is hobbling about on crutches and is not likely to play again until the end of the week.

RAY'S GOLF MARK IS EQUALLED BY BOWDEN

The sensation of the war service golf tournament at The Country Club, Brookline, was a round of seventy, equalling the record of the course made by Edward Ray, English champion, in the national open championship in 1913. George Bowden, Tedesco, achieved this remarkable round of golf.

Thomas F. Kerrigan, Pelham Bay Training Station, was the winner of the two days' special medal play golf tournament which began at Brae-Burn. His total of 306 was one stroke over Tom McNamara, Siwanoy.

What Has Gone Before

Little Cecilia Madden, daughter of poor parents, wanders along Broadway and stops to admire some pink roses in a florist's window. Her enraptured attention attracts the notice of passers-by and noticably increases the sale of the flowers within. The florist calls her in and gives her a dime, in spite of her protest that she would prefer a pink rose for her invalid mother. As roses are selling at fifty cents apiece, he tells her to run along.

NOT that Cecilia put it that way; what she said to herself was:

"Lord, if you don't help me to manage Johnny, I don't see what I'm going to do. He wants what he wants awful hard, and he'll do most anything to get it. He never thinks of nobody or seems to love nobody but Maw, and he's such a taking little rascal that it's hard to say no to him. You got to stand back of me and do the saying of 'no' when it's best for him. Won't you please oblige me like that, Gawd?"

"Johnny!" called the weak voice from the bedroom. "Would you bring me a glass of cold water—I'm kinda dry?"

"If only I had a piece of ice to go with it," murmured Cecilia to herself.

Let Water Run

But Johnny was letting the water run in a wild stream that promised some measure of coolness. Suddenly he looked up as one inspired. "I got a penny—I was saving it for an all-day sucker tomorrow. I'm going down now and get a piece of ice off'n the drug store at the corner. You tell Maw I'll be right back." And the unselfish little lad darted out to yield up his treasure to the little mother even he was content to serve.

The outer door swung open. A man in overalls followed the inward swing. He was tall, loose built and loose hung. His arms were long and there was a workman's slouch to his shoulders. A twinkle in his blue eyes and a mirthful quirk to the corners of his mouth gave his rather heavy face a pleasant expression.

"It's hot!" he breathed. "How's Herself?"

From the bedroom came a low moan.

"Oh' she's took worse," sighed the little girl, and together she and her father crossed to the bedroom door.

On the stove the frying potatoes browned, crisped merrily and then turned smoky black. A little boy tiptoed in with a square of ice in a tiny pasteboard container. The flies buzzed. And from the bedroom beyond there was the sound of low moaning.

"Oh, Oh!"

"Oh, Gawd, Mary!" murmured Jerry Madden contritely. "Can you ever forgive me for bringing you to this?"

His lank form had crumpled on the floor and his head lay on the coverlet by his wife's side.

The frail creature in the bed was racked with torturing pain. Her great wide eyes were staring in an agony that was almost dazed. Her dry lips opened, and a drop of blood stood on one of them. Moisture had racked its way out on her broad forehead. With her wide braids of red gold hair drawn from the parting that Cecilia had striven painfully to make straight, Mary Madden looked like a suffering Madonna.

She moved her lips and tried to speak, but words would not come. She lifted one weak hand and laid it on her man's head. That gesture told everything—love, abnegation, sacrifice and love again! The perfect cycle.

Out in the kitchen Johnny was whimpering. "Maw—maw—maw!"

Cecilia crept to his side. "Snuggle up to sister, Johnny. I know I ain't the same—I know I ain't nothin' like her, but I love you, too. You snuggle up to sister."

Johnny whipped out a fretful hand and pushed the little girl away. "I want maw—" he whimpered. "You leave me be."

"Cecilia, bring some water to bathe your maw's forehead!" called Jerry Madden from the bedroom.

"Give me the ice," ordered Cecilia, springing into action and need like a young general.

They opened the container—floating in a sea of water was about one tiny flake of ice. The cruel heat had melted Johnny's gift. The children looked at each other in despair, and Johnny whimpered again: "I want maw! Oh, Cells, why did you make me set that lost? Now I won't even have my lollypop tomorrow."

From the bedroom there was a cry of pain. Jerry Madden crept to the door—in his eyes there was the questioning look of a whipped dog. "I'm going for that Doctor Van Dorn," he said. "If he's the only one that can help your ma, then he's going to come here. You go in and try to do for her," he said.

Then he darted from the hot little flat and dashed across the streets to the avenue that lay a half-mile and a whole world beyond. Five cents for the subway did not seem too much. It meant going without tobacco for his pipe, but how could it matter, since he was hurrying to the great doctor who might help Mary?

In Dr. Van Dorn's private office there sat a beautiful young woman who was bored by life—a terrible state of affairs for a lovely young creature whose father had millions. The doctor was giving that case best attention.

Jerry Rushes in

In the outer office there sat a group of society women, worn out from playing bridge or attending charity bazaars, and a few men made nervous and thin by Wall Street or fat and lethargic by clever chefs.

Jerry Madden dashed up the street from the subway to the house of healing.

"Blessed Mother Mary, won't you do for my Mary and let the doctor help her?" he prayed. "A dollar in the missionary box, though the grocer goes unpaid—never a sip of beer or a packful of tobacco for a month to come. Never again, so long as I live for the matter o' that, if only you'll help my Mary," he prayed.

Women in War Work

By Elizabeth Ellam,

Special Agent, United States Employment Service, Department of Labor.

"EVERY woman from eighteen to eighty-five wants to work in a munitions plant," a tired registration official told me the other day as I talked to her in one of the federal offices. "One would think that there was never anything else to do. Yet—there are many other essential industries all calling for the labor of these feminine hands, but the women do not want to answer the call."

Patriotism does not consist alone in making furse, or packing explosives, or making cases for shells. This is all important work, it is true, but there is a good deal of other very important work to be done, without which the munitions will never be used.

A Few Figures

I am indebted to a current magazine for these figures, which can be used so appropriately here to illustrate the point that I want to make. Within a few months after the declaration of war there was a call to 10,000,000 factory and mill trained women, and these calls have continued. They are urgent, and they are important, although they do not seem to be in the light of romance, as does the "woman yeoman," the "canteen worker" or the motor driver.

Here are some other calls. By the middle of the Summer 524,000,000 pounds of canned goods must be on hand for the boys. Fully 300,000,000 yards of cloth are needed to clothe, bed and shelter an army such as we have now in France. And it takes trained hands to drive this material through modern machinery.

Fully 15,000,000 knit undershirts, nearly 20,000,000 pairs of underdrawers and 27,000,000 pairs of socks required, while the War Department alone has ordered 20,000,000 pairs of shoes.

There are only women left to do this work. Are you interested? Do you want to help this gigantic work, for Uncle Sam and your brothers across the sea?

If you are, I will gladly put you in touch with the proper authorities who will advise you if the woman that seeks the job with the job that is seeking the woman.

Dear Miss Ellam.—Will you kindly give me what information you can in regards to being a farmerette? I would like to know where I can look for employment of this kind. I graduated from high school five years ago, and have been working in an office since. I now find that I need the out-of-door life, and besides, I want to be of service to Uncle Sam.

Jamaica Plain.

If you wish to enroll for farm service, apply to Mrs. William A. Copeland, National Women's Farm and Garden Agency, No. 4 Joy street, Boston. Mrs. Copeland will register you and will call you for service when there is need. You can enroll for the Summer work or for part time. A "farmerette" receives a regular wage, in addition to her room and board.

Only Qualification

The only qualification is that a woman must be eighteen years of age and strong. It is not play, but genuine hard work that is wanted on the farms. Girls who think otherwise should not undertake the work. In other words, it is not a Summer vacation that includes an hour or so of work in the garden each day. Living conditions are carefully looked into by Mrs. Copeland before girls are sent out to any farm, and they are kept watch of after that.

The above will also answer C. B. M. of Boston, whose answer was somewhat mutilated in an earlier paper. I believe that it will be quite possible for you to enroll in this work for the period of your vacation.

If Gertrude S. J. of South Boston will send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope I will gladly send her the name of the factory that provides a day nursery for children of mothers who are employed there.

5. Pack clean hot jars with the cold-dipped product, adding salt to vegetables.
6. Pour on the boiling liquid to within one-quarter inch of the top.
7. Place rubbers and covers and partially seal.
8. Sterilize the products the required time. Begin to count when the water boils.
9. Remove the jars and seal at once. Invert to cool.
10. Label, wrap and store on a cool, dry shelf.

Red Coral

The red coral that is used for necklaces is a horny axis which supports a number of self-bodied animals or polyps, the entire structure bearing a strong resemblance to a small shrub. This fishermen, after they have brought this shrub-like colony to the surface, clean the soft animal matter away, preserving the red core or axis, which is sold for the manufacture of jewelry. Although red coral contains lime, it is largely composed of a substance akin to horn, and, like horn, it takes a fine polish. Animal substances of this nature almost invariably change their color when brought into intense heat.

Stifling Rumor

"I've walked many miles to see you, sir, because people told me that you was very kind to poor chaps like me." "Oh, they said so, did they?" "Yes, sir; that's why I came." "And are you going back the same way?" "Yes, sir." "Then, in that case, will you be a good enough to contradict that statement"

Moral Suicide

A SERIAL OF LOVE AND LIFE

AT the particular moment that Thompson told her that Miss Lucy was calling on Beatrice, Fay changed. She had turned on the boy like a tigress: "You hear that? Your cousin calls and doesn't even ask for me. I suppose you'll treat me that way, too, some fine day—snub me the way your precious sister and cousin do. Out of my sight; I hate you all!"

Waverly slunk away terrified, but at tea time he crept to his mother's door and begged for admission and forgiveness. Fay dragged him into her beautiful boudoir and smiled at him once more. He watched her brush her wonderful black hair and was permitted to tie her dainty oxfords. Then suddenly he was dismissed again. He went to his room half sulky half miserable. "There are devils in her eyes—they call me —and some day I shall answer the call. Then I wonder what will happen," murmured the boy to himself.

At last his own thoughts were more than he could bear. He got up and began pacing nervously up and down his room. There was something he wanted—he hardly knew what. He did not dare be alone. Beatrice, she would tell him what to do. The boy hurried down the hall, impelled by a necessity he hardly understood. He knocked at Beatrice's door, but there was no answer. Then he opened it and strode in. His sister stood across the room smiling strangely and pointing something at her own heart. Waverly hurled himself across the space and wrested the revolver from the girl.

"Let me have it,—don't be cruel to me Waverly," sobbed Beatrice.

Then she poured out the whole miserable story to her brother. She hardly expected him to understand, and yet she knew that she must talk—she must have some outlet for her surging emotions. She felt that without Rodman she could not live and that marriage to him would be the deepest shame.

Waverly had a masculine viewpoint. He felt vaguely that Rodman was not all to blame; he was conscious of the strange charm his stepmother had even for him. Beatrice was a girl—she could never understand—but he must try to explain. His head ached. He was miserably unhappy; his feelings for Fay seemed suddenly a hideous thing. The boy and the girl stood looking at each other in puzzled wonder. They longed to help each other, but they were alike helpless.

Rodman lifted his dejected head. A glimmer of hope came into his eyes. "Liz, you're a brick! There never was another woman like you. By Jove, perhaps I've a chance. I couldn't tell the story myself—there are some things a man can't do. Even a woman like Fay Hope is sacred—because she's a woman.

The story Rodman Daniels told was almost as old as the world—and surely as old as the art of writing! There was a boy at college, young, emotional, untrained in the ways of woman and the world. Football and the crew had given him broad shoulders, a deep chest, steadiness of eye and length of limb. Football and the crew and studies and friendship with other boys had filled his life.

He was twenty—a child with the desires of a man; a man with the worldly knowledge of a child—a sophomore, and proud when some of the lordly seniors treated him as one of their own group.

One day, as he and Zip Bowers, a gay and popular member of the senior class, were returning from a cross-country tramp, a high-powered car stopped at the far end of Chapel street, where it fades from city glory into country grace, and a woman's voice called: "Hello, Zip Bowers! come on laddy, keep me from dying of loneliness"——

And the sophomore met Miss Constance Beaver.

Conny Beaver was beautiful, alluring, wise in the ways of men, and the football hero was only a boy. She read his heart easily. She taught him also to read it. She made him understand his own surging desires. There was a month of courtship—advancing and retreating—and then there were two months of love a la mode. And then the boy's overdrawn accounts, both on the bank of love and the bank of finance, demanded adjustment.

There had been letters—passionate, turbulent letters—demoaning every moment of separation. . . . There were threats, a breach of promise suit and a ruined college career menaced the boy. His turned to an older man—a man he could trust. And that man paid for his letters and his freedom and his lesson with $5,000.

The Plotters

A NEW AND ABSORBING SERIAL

John Butler Manifests an Interest in Elizabeth and a Dislike for Amos Chapin's Methods

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

Copyright, 1918, by the Star Company.

CHAPTER VII. (Continued)

SHE heard a windowblind on the second floor of the house open, and for an instant she stood motionless. She remembered that this was the corner of the house in which John Butler was lodged. He had probably thrown open the blind of his room to get more light, and must have seen her.

Was he watching her? She pretended to be busy with the flowers, but she felt waves of hot color flooding her neck and face. What a fool she was!

With an impatient movement, she sprang down from the chair and hurried into the house.

Laying her flowers in the dining room, she went back to the yard for the chair. This time she permitted herself to glance up furtively at the window above her.

Yes, John Butler stood there, and she saw that now he was not looking at her. Instead his eyes were fixed dreamily on the hills in the distance. But as she started to go back to the house he moved quickly and looked down, then leaned forward to see her more clearly.

A Dreamy Look.

Her eyes did not meet his, for she bent over the chair as if finding it heavy. Had she detected an expression of disapproval on the face of the newcomer? If so, it was because he had fancied that she was some girl to whom he would have to be agreeable. Well, she would set his fears at rest when she came face to face with him.

He need not be nervous lest there be some woman here who would demand attention from him.

She went into the kitchen when supper was ready and lingered there until she heard the guest enter the dining room and takes the seat assigned to him by his host. There was the sound of chairs being pulled back from the table, then a silence while the trio there waited for her.

After a minute Mrs. Chapin called:

"Lizzie!" with a tremulous note as she spoke the unaccustomed name. "Come, my dear!"

"All right, Cousin Martha," the girl called back.

She glanced again in the mirror over the kitchen sink and smoothed her hair hastily, then went on into the dining room hurriedly, as if she had been busy to the last moment with some necessary household task.

Amos Chapin did not rise as the girl entered. John Butler, true to the instinct of his class, arose immediately.

"Mr. Butler, let me make you acquainted with — with my young cousin—Miss——"

Mrs. Chapin hesitated for the fraction of a moment, but her husband came to her aid.

"Our young cousin, Miss Moore," he supplemented. "Sit down, Lizzie; we're waiting supper for you."

CHAPTER VIII.

ELIZABETH took it for granted that John Butler bowed in acknowledgment of Amos Chapin's introduction, but she did not look at him to make sure. She heard him take a step forward to pull her chair out from the table for her, but she sat down hastily, before he could reach her.

There was an awkward silence after the host had made the usual comments on the weather. Elizabeth felt it incumbent upon her to say something. This nervous man must not feel that he had come into a family of cold, stiff New Englanders.

"I hope," she said, forcing herself to glance at the person she addressed, "that you had a pleasant journey."

A slight expression of surprise crossed the stranger's face, and Elizabeth realized that a girl in the station she was supposed to occupy would hardly have spoken in this way to a man who she had just met as a lodger in her cousin's home.

"Thanks; I had a pleasant enough journey," Butler rejoined. "But I never sleep well on the cars, so I found it rather tedious."

Another silence. This time Butler broke it.

"Where do you live, Miss Moore? Mrs. Chapin said, I think, that you are visiting her, but that you do not live here."

"No, I do not live here," she said slowly, "although I have been here a good deal off and on since I was a child."

Why did not somebody come to her assistance and change the subject before another embarrassing question could be asked?

But she need not have feared a repetition of the inquiry just then. Butler said no more except in reply to a query as to whether he took sugar and cream in his coffee, or desired more butter.

Supper over, he pushed back his chair when Lizzie rose and followed him out upon the veranda, while Elizabeth went into the kitchen with Mrs. Chapin to help wash the dishes.

A Remembrance

A half hour later the matron and her companion came out upon the veranda. The sun had set and there was a golden glow over everything. As at supper, when Elizabeth appeared Butler stood up.

"Where will you sit?" he asked, addressing both women. "Can't I get your chairs for you?"

"No, thank you, Mrs. Chapin replied with a kindly smile, "but we are used to waiting on ourselves."

Elizabeth knew nothing of the top step. "I will sit here, thank you," she said.

Lizzie seated himself on the other end of the step, and sat regarding her intently, but not rudely.

"Excuse me, Miss Moore," he begged, "but I have been trying ever since I met you at supper to remember of whom you remind me. And I cannot remember."

"Whom do I resemble, Cousin Martha?" the girl asked quickly, turning to Mrs. Chapin, who sat behind her. "Am I like my father or my mother?"

"Well," the other woman answered slowly, hesitatingly, as if feeling her way, "I can't just rightly say, my dear, who you resemble."

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

Can't Be Done

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am twenty, and it happens that on my way to business every morning I see a charming lady whom I would like very much to meet. What can I do to make her acquaintance?

HARRY.

HARRY, no one yet has ever worked out a solution of your problem, but may give you an opportunity to meet this girl in a way that will give the proper element of dignity to your acquaintance. You know nothing of each other, you may have nothing in common, and were you to meet informally and at once would have doubts and questionings about the conventional "rules of the game"—but most of them have been tested and found to work. Being introduced is a mere formality—but it works. The introduction is a sort of mutual guarantee of respectability, and makes a fine basis for the right kind of friendship.

Don't Be a Coward.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am eighteen, a high school graduate and have been working over three years and am quite pretty.

My employer, though married, is continually telling me how he loves to see me. It annoys me and I have told him so. But it has continued. I cannot leave my position as stenographer, because I need it. Now, what shall I do? Can you help me, because I am poor and cannot ask outside advice?

POOR GIRL.

DON'T take an attitude of injured innocence, my dear. There is nothing in the world to prevent your leaving your position and getting a far better one! Never was feminine labor in greater demand than now—never was it better paid. There are, doubtless, any number of other positions open to you. Your employer knows this, and as long as you stay and put up with conditions in his office he is going to take advantages of the situation—always provided he is "that sort of man!" Don't put in a few coquettish and half-hearted protests that invite him to proceed. Just tell him with dignity and conviction that you are in his office on a business—not a social—basis, and that unless he treats you as an employe you must seek work elsewhere. We get what we ask for in this world—remember that!

SAYS WOMEN FEAR SUNSHINE

"Too many women regard the sun and the air as their worst enemies, rather than as their best friends," a Western woman golf champion remarked recently at a Los Angeles country club.

"I have been playing golf almost daily for 15 years, and I make it a rule to go hatless as much as possible. I find that the sun and the fresh air keep my scalp in excellent condition, and I have also found a fine preparation called Q-Ban Hair Color Restorer, which keeps ugly streaks away from my hair, maintaining it a dark natural color. The combination certainly is most beneficial." A recent photograph of the fair golfer bears out her assertions.—Advertisement.

American Readers to Help Pick Winners in $5,000 Song Contest

THE Hearst papers would like to see some splendid patriotic songs written to express the inspiring spirit of America in this great war.

To stimulate the song writers of the country to turn their talents in this patriotic direction the Hearst papers offer FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS IN PRIZES for the best song submitted to them, the $5,000 to be divided as follows: For the best song, to be selected by popular vote, $2,000; for the popular song which stands second in the poll, $1,000; for the third on the list when the ballots are counted, $500; for the fourth on the list when the ballots are counted, $250, and $100 each for the next ten in the voting.

A competent committee will select fifteen of the best songs and these will be published in sheet music form in the Hearst papers. The millions of readers of the Hearst papers will see and sing and play these songs, and then by their verdict determine which of the fifteen deserve the first prize, which the second, and so forth.

The song writers will retain all rights to their songs except the right of publication in the Hearst papers. The object of these prizes is not to secure the rights to these songs, but to stimulate the writing of patriotic songs of the highest order and to facilitate the distribution of these inspiring words and music scores among the millions of readers of the Hearst publications in order to arouse their patriotism to the highest pitch.

"I care not who makes the laws of a nation, if I can but make the songs," said Andrew Fletcher of Saltoun in a letter to the Marquis of Montrose, the Earl of Rothes.

THE HEARST PAPERS HAVE HELPED THEIR READERS MAKE THE LAWS OF THE NATION AND NOW WISH TO HELP THEM MAKE THE SONGS OF THE NATION.

American Readers to Help Pick Winners in $5,000 Song Contest

THE Hearst papers would like to see some splendid patriotic songs written to express the inspiring spirit of America in this great war.

To stimulate the song writers of the country to turn their talents in this patriotic direction, the Hearst papers offer FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS IN PRIZES for the best song submitted to them, the $5,000 to be divided as follows: For the best song, to be selected by popular vote, $2,000; for the popular song which stands second in the poll, $1,000; for the third on the list when the ballots are counted, $500; for the fourth on the list when the ballots are counted, $250, and $100 each for the next ten in the voting.

A competent committee will select fifteen of the best songs and these will be published in sheet music form in the Hearst papers. The millions of readers of the Hearst papers will see and sing and play these songs, and then by their verdict determine which of the fifteen deserve the first prize, which the second, and so forth.

The song writers will retain all rights to their songs except the right of publication in the Hearst papers. The object of these prizes is not to secure the rights to these songs, but to stimulate the writing of patriotic songs of the highest order and to facilitate the distribution of these inspiring words and music scores among the millions of readers of the Hearst publications in order to arouse their patriotism to the highest pitch.

"I care not who makes the laws of a nation, if I can but make the songs," said Andrew Fletcher of Saltoun in a letter to the Marquis of Montrose, the Earl of Rothes.

THE HEARST PAPERS HAVE HELPED THEIR READERS MAKE THE LAWS OF THE NATION AND NOW WISH TO HELP THEM MAKE THE SONGS OF THE NATION.

WORK OF NAVY IN WAR SEEN ON FILM

The present war has developed a new navy. That navy is not like the navies of the times of Drake, or Farragut, or even Dewey; its men rarely take part in a clash of ships, and almost never in the hostile meeting of battle fleets. It is engaged in comparatively prosaic tasks; a navy not given to show.

Just what it is like those Bostonians who heard Ralph D. Paine's lecture, "The Fighting Fleets," and saw the inimitable films shown with it, had a remarkable opportunity to discover. The film shows in detail how swift destroyers and motor patrols hunt down the lurking U-boat; how transports are protected from the enemy; how nets are maintained across the Channel to make safe the way to France; how mine sweepers pursue daily the task that may send the boat and every man on board to the next world in an instant.

The real peril of the work is illustrated by Mr. Paine's statement that 100 mine sweepers have been blown up since the war began.

The British monitors, similar in design to those which did such great service for the North in the Civil War, are pictured in action, bombarding the Belgian coast.

The audience was much interested in the scenes showing the arrival of the American fleet abroad and of Armiral Sims' reception by the British admiral. Pictures of the American fleet in action and of the landing of General Pershing's men were other interesting features.

Lloyd George's Speech Shames Snipers of U. S. War Policy

British Premier's Speech in Commons a Remarkable Tribute to American Military Preparedness.

David Lloyd George, Prime Minister of England and one of the great figures of the world, made a notable speech yesterday in the House of Commons which has been published by the newspapers throughout the world.

In that speech Lloyd George told the people of Great Britain that the Americans are pouring into France so fast that victory is now a matter of certainty. The Premier said: "Enough Americans have already arrived to satisfy the Allies and to disappoint and ultimately defeat our foes." But more than this, and very significant in view of the attacks which Theodore Roosevelt and other partisan Republican politicians and the corporation press have been making upon the administration and Secretary Baker, is the following declaration by Premier Lloyd George:

"It is an amazing piece of organization which has enabled the bringing of such vast numbers of first-rate American troops to France."

This amazing organization, built up by Secretary of War Baker and the able, energetic, patriotic assistants whom he has chosen from the Regular Army and from civil life, is the organization that Theodore Roosevelt has attacked as incompetent—so incompetent that he charges the Hearst newspapers with being guilty of treason for supporting it. Throughout the nation for a whole year there has been an organized attack upon Secretary Baker, Secretary Daniels and every other progressive member of the administration, including President Wilson. Their offence really is that they will not allow the profiteers and their Republican politician tools to run this war as they have run other wars.

We have raised the greatest army in our history. We have raised the greatest army ever raised and equipped in the same time by any nation in the world. The British Premier speaks of the training and equipment of our American army in terms of the highest admiration. We already know what the French general staff think of the military preparations that America has made. The German high command knows as well as the British and the French what we have actually done—the wonders we have actually performed. The misrepresentations by Mr. Roosevelt, inspired by bitter personal hatred of President Wilson, have not deceived the German high command. But Mr. Roosevelt's attacks upon our preparation, and the attacks of the corporation press of the country, following Mr. Roosevelt's example, and of the reactionary, partisan Republican Senators, have been used by the German high command to deceive the German people into believing that America is not preparing, does not want to prepare and is not capable of preparing. Thus all that Mr. Roosevelt accomplishes and all that his followers accomplish is to afford the German propagandists means of keeping up the courage of the German people by showing what an ex-President of the United States says about the incapacity of the American Government to utilize the known and admitted resources of this great Nation.

Shame on Mr. Roosevelt and his tribe of guerrillas sniping at Mr. Baker, at Secretary Daniels, at Postmaster-General Burleson and even at the President himself, to the edification of our common enemy abroad and to the distraction of our efficiency at home.

It must be said to the credit of a great majority of the Republican leaders and the entire mass of the Republican party that partisanship of this wretched character has been condemned by them as well as it has been condemned by the rest of America.

Hurrah for Italy and the Italians

The Italians have gained one of the greatest victories in this great conflict which involves almost the whole human family.

Italy's victory is in keeping with her wonderful history. The Italians by this victory have shown that they inherit that old Italian capacity to suffer defeat without loss of morale which makes a renewal of the conflict and ultimate victory possible. If there was one peculiarly distinguishing characteristic of the old Latin race during the period when Roman legions were conquering the world, it was the capacity of the Latin people to suffer tremendous defeats and yet rise from their prostration to snatch victory from disaster. No other race in ancient history ever was able to suffer such reverses as were inflicted upon the Romans by the Carthaginians under Hannibal and yet continue the contest, as they continued it for twenty years, with the final destruction of Carthage and of Hannibal.

Most students of history will probably be surprised to learn that the Romans suffered a great many defeats during their conquering career, yet these students of history will realize the truth of this statement if they cast their mind back over Roman history with this point in view.. It was the capacity of the Romans to stand punishment as well as their capacity to give punishment that made them the conquerors of the world. So it is with the Latins of today, the French and the Italians. No armies ever sustained more trying, morale-destroying experiences than the French armies sustained in the retreat from the Belgian frontier to the Marne in 1914. Such was the morale of the French nation in arms, such their capacity to receive punishment, that when Marshal Joffre on the night of the 4th of September, 1914, ordered the French armies to halt and told every French soldier that he must die in his tracks rather than to give another inch of French soil, those French soldiers fought and won the battle of the Marne, which will probably go down in history as the most decisive battle in the world.

So the Italians stood their terrible punishment last September without the loss of morale, just as their ancestors of the ancient world took their punishment, and, now, with even greater capacity to recover from their defeat than their ancestors, they have turned upon their ancient enemy and overwhelmed him as if they had never received a blow in the whole war.

We hope now that some people in this country will realize that Italy is one of our allies, and will fly the Italian flag whenever the flag of any of the other allies is flown.

The AMERICAN has already called attention to the failure of some of our people, especially of a particular class in the community, to recognize the service of Italy in this great struggle by flying her flag when they fly the flag of our other comrades in arms.

IN MEMORIAM

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1918, by the Star Company.

(This striking and beautiful poem was written in France and read on Memorial Day over the soldiers' graves in Texas.)

FLOWERS of France, in the Spring
Your growth is a beautiful thing;
But give us your fragrance and bloom—
Yea, give us your lives—in truth,
Give us your sweetness and grace
To brighten the resting place
Of the flower of manhood and youth,
Gone into the dust of the tomb.

This is the vast, stupendous hour of Time.
When nothing counts but sacrifice and faith,
Service and self-forgetfulness. Sublime
And awful are these moments, charged with death
And red with slaughter. Yet God's purpose thrives
In all this holocaust of human lives.

I say God's purpose thrives. Just in the measure
That men have flung away their lust for gain—
Stopped in their mad pursuit for worldly pleasure,
And boldly faced unprecedented pain
And dangers, without thinking of the cost—
So thrives God's purpose in the holocaust.

Death is a little thing—all men must die,
But when ideals die God grieves in heaven.
Therefore, I think it was the reason why
This Armageddon to the world was given.
The soul of man, forgetful of its birth,
Was losing sight of everything but earth.

Up from these many million graves shall spring
A shining harvest for the coming race.
An Army of Invisibles shall bring
A glorified lost faith back to its place.
And men shall know there is a higher goal
Than earthly triumphs for the human soul.

They are not dead—they are not dead! I say,
These men whose mortal forms are in the sod.
A grand Advance Guard, marching on its way.
Their souls move upward to salute their God!
While to their comrades who are in the strife
They cry, "Fight on! Death is the dawn of life."

We had forgotten all the depth and beauty
And lofty purport of that old, true word
Replaced by pleasure—that old, good word—duty.
Now by its meaning is the whole world stirred.
These men died for it—for it now we give
And sacrifice and serve, and toil and live.

From out our hearts had gone a high devotion
For any thing. It took a mighty wrath
Against great evil to wake strong emotion
And put us back upon the righteous path.
It took a mingled stream of tears and blood
To cut the channel through to Brotherhood.

That word meant nothing on our lips in peace:
We had despoiled it by our castes and classes.
But when this savage carnage finds surcease
A new ideal will unite the masses.
And there shall be True Brotherhood with men—
The Christly Spirit stirring earth again.

For this our men have suffered, fought and died;
And we who can but dimly see the end
Are guarded by their spirits glorified,
Who help us on our way, while they ascend.
They are not dead—they are not dead! I say—
These men whose graves we decorate today.

America and France walk hand in hand;
As one their hearts beat through the coming years.
One is the aim and purpose of each land,
Baptized with Holy Water of their tears.
Today they worship with one faith, and know
Grief's first Communion in God's House of Woe.

Great Liberty, the Goddess at our gates,
And great Jeanne d'Arc are fused into one soul.
A host of Angels on that soul awaits
To lead it up to triumph at the goal.
Along the path of Victory they tread,
Moves the majestic cortege of our dead.

Flowers of France, in the Spring
Your growth is a beautiful thing;
But give us your fragrance and bloom—
Yea, give us your lives—in truth,
Give us your sweetness and grace
To brighten the resting place
Of the flower of manhood and youth,
Gone into the dust of the tomb.

HUMAN SIDE OF BIG U. S. ARMY IS DESCRIBED

By an Army Chaplain

I CONSIDER my job the most interesting in the army. No officer has more rich and varied opportunities for service than a chaplain. No officer's calendar presents greater contrasts. It is a chaplain's duty to oversee the dispositions of his mobile flock, as well as their souls, minds, amusements, morals, correspondence, and reading matter. He must go from the boxing ring to the hospital, and from the theatre to the guard-house. He is in jail oftener than any other man in the service. But, if his work is well done, he is there none too often to suit the men.

Last January General Pershing sent a cablegram to the Secretary of War asking that the number of chaplains in the army be increased for the war to the average of three per regiment. His cablegram reads, in part, as follows: " * * * I believe the personnel of the army has never been equalled, and the conduct has been excellent, but to overcome entirely the conditions found here requires fortitude borne of great courage and lofty spiritual ideas. Counting myself responsible for the welfare of our men in every respect, it is my desire to surround them with the best influence possible. In the fulfilment of this solemn trust, it seems wise to request the aid of the churches from home. * * *"

Commissioned Officer

The chaplain is a commissioned officer, starting with the rank of first lieutenant. He is always an ordained clergyman who has had practical experience as a pastor before entering the army. The different religious bodies are represented in the chaplaincies in numbers proportionate to the number of adherents of the different denominations in the country at large. Each is privileged to conduct religious services in the manner prescribed by his own church. But, when that has been said, I have expressed all the denominationalism that there is in the army. In this as in many other respects the army has set an example to civil life, for it has learned the needlessness and waste of many sectarian lines in the face of human need.

Some people have the idea that all a chaplain has to do is conduct religious services. At other times they think of him as enjoying a life of complete relaxation. The utter mistakenness of this notion becomes evident after the briefest survey of the tasks assigned to a chaplain.

Information Bureau

For one thing, he is the information bureau of his regiment. If a soldier wants to know a street address, a telephone number, or a train schedule, he goes to the chaplain's office. If he wants right information on current topics he calls on the chaplain and asks him if he has any late magazines or newspapers dealing with the question. On some of the battleships the naval chaplains put out periodicals for the men. Some of these magazines are really excellent productions.

Then, there is the whole problem of education. If there are men in the regiment lacking in necessary education the chaplain is expected to organize classes in the common branches, so that they may improve themselves along those lines, make themselves more useful to their country, and brighten their own futures. The chaplain frequently gives lectures to recruits on discipline and the relation of moral cleanliness to health and efficiency. He keeps a record of all the men as they come into the service, including their names, home address, next of kin, education, and other items.

Chauffeurs' Age Limit

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

I am a boy of seventeen and have had two years' experience on automobiles. I can drive any make of truck. I have tried to get a professional chauffeur's license, but the age limit is eighteen. I would like to make the suggestion through the AMERICAN that the limit be lowered to seventeen. This would help fill many positions on farms and in other essential work and supply vacancies left by the brave boys who are canning the Kaiser.

PHOTOS AT BEST FAIL TO SHOW REAL EGO

By Mrs. Wilson Woodrow

DID you ever look at a photograph of yourself taken five or ten years ago, or even one year ago? It is immediately to realize the truth of that line in the Rubaiyat about being "one with yesterday's seven thousand years."

A photograph is one of the dead-est things in the universe. You hold it in your hand and murmur with the lady in the Mother Goose rhyme: "If this be I, and that could never be!" There is something in you which not only fails to recognize it, but which absolutely repudiates it.

Even the people who consider it a fairly good likeness can say nothing more than: "I have seen you look just that way." To which you might truthfully reply: "Yes, but you might have also seen me look a thousand different ways, all of which are just as real as this fleeting expression which the camera has caught and fixed."

I do not know who it was that first used the phrase, "counterfeit presentment" to describe a photograph, but it could not have been better expressed; for any photograph is merely the record of an artificial moment. Your mind is concentrated on looking your best, which, of course, means that you succeed brilliantly in looking your worst.

The photographer says kindly, but with a touch of reproof: "Not so serious. Smile. Relax the pose a little. Be more natural. There, that is better." Immediately all the muscles in your face set and harden. And the camera clicks.

Irrevocably Caught

It is caught, irrevocably caught—that something that is never you. True, it presents your outline, the shape of your features, and even your expression. But, nevertheless, it is a false and fleeting impression of this many-sided identity you call "I." And there it stands; but you, this "I" that is portrayed, have already rushed on to new experiences, thoughts, emotions.

And this is true of all the various molds which would try to hold us static. A portrait is only an impression of those particular qualities which the painter divines in us, but another painter would see us from quite a different mental angle and his portrait would give the idea of an entirely different personality.

We change while the clock ticks. And yet there is nothing most people dread so much as change.

A woman showed me the other day some old photographs of herself. The first ones represented her as a radiant girl. She sighed as she held them up and looked at them.

"How cruel life is," she said. "Why, in addition to all the trials and heartaches it brings, should we have to change and fade as we do? It makes everything a tragedy."

I looked from her to the photographs and back again, and for a second both the woman and the photographs seemed to fade from before my eyes. It is hard to describe in words, but only the atmosphere of each appeared to remain.

Instead of the youthful face in the photograph, there was an impression of radiance and joy, hope and wonder, something as fresh as the dawn; and instead of the woman, there was a shadow, with an almost visible aura of bitterness and disappointment and resentment and anger and fear; ugly, unnecessary, destructive things which she had let storm her mind and occupy its citadel until they had worked their perfectly logical ruin.

Difference of Viewpoint

She had not even attempted to hold on to her radiance, and yet that had once been a part of her—the real part. She had insisted on regarding herself as a creature of time, and not of eternity. She had spent the years in running away from the beautiful moment when the camera had caught and held her youthful likeness. Yet our beautiful moments are our only real possessions. Then why do we part from them so readily.

There is one glory of the sun and another of the moon. We have all seen beauty at every age. And who would want always to retain the fugitive and elusive charm of April? There are other manifestations—the enchantment of Summer, the golden splendor of Autumn, the mysterious and solemn beauty of Winter.
